WEATHER

Mostly sunny skies and warm temperatures are expected today with some scattered thundershowers.

Top Of The Morning

WEATHER

Mostly sunny skies and warmer temperatures are forecast today with a high temperature reading near 75. The overnight low should be about 55. Some shower activity is expected by tonight. Winds today will be southwesterly 10 to 20 mph. The outlook for Friday calls for cooler temperatures and showers. Wednesday's 7 a.m. report: high 77; low 37; there was no precipitation recorded. The river level was 2.2 feet and falling.

KINZUA DAM REPORT

Pool level 1322.72 (desired summer pool level 1328 feet); maximum 1365 feet. Outflow temperature 32 degrees. Upper reservoir 54 degrees. The reading at the Warren gauge 2.15 feet.

WARREN COUNTY

U.S. Senator Joseph S. Clark will be principal speaker at the Memorial Day dedication ceremonies of the historic three flags to be flown in Crescent Park.

An annual epidemic, the illegal use of air rifles, has begun in Warren County, according to law enforcement officials.

PENNSYLVANIA

Mine subsidence is an emotional subject in Pennsylvania, but in Great Britain, they've just learned to live with it.

House passes 105-80 and sends to an uncertain fate in the Senate legislation to earmark portion of cigarette tax revenues for state aid to nonpublic schools.

Proponents and opponents speak out on a $4.5 million item in President Johnson's budget for a proposed dam in central Pennsylvania.

Bell Telephone Co. of Pennsylvania makes "end of line" offer for ending a strike of 13,000 Federation of Telephone Workers of Pennsylvania.

THE NATION

The unemployment rate dropped to 3.5 per cent of the labor force last month, equaling a 15-year low mark, but the percentage of Negro jobless remained more than double that of white workers.

The Pentagon remains silent on how North Vietnam has been able to infiltrate 80,000 to 100,000 troops south across the demilitarized zone despite a billion dollar obstacle course.

Congressional critics prod the Army to explain why an established machine-gun manufacturer lost out on the M16 contract when its bid was $20 million below that of General Motors, one of the successful bidders.

Robert F. Kennedy is ready to apply to next Tuesday's Nebraska primary the men, money and movement formula that landed him on top in Indiana's three-man Democratic contest.

It will be least Thursday evening before rescuers can bring out 15 miners known to be alive in a water-filled coal mine.

President Johnson voiced hope that the Vietnam talks will bear fruit as Ambassador-at-large W. Averell Harriman prepared to leave for Paris.

Senate-House conferees agreed Wednesday night on a $10 billion income tax increase and a $6 billion cut in spending during the next year. The tax would be in the form of a 10 per cent surcharge on existing taxes.

THE WORLD

Pope Paul VI is taking the longest trip of his reign in August—a visit to Colombia for Roman Catholic conferences.

The Communist command's new drive against Saigon slackens on the eve of preliminary Vietnam peace talks in Paris.

SPORTS

SHATTERED WINDSHIELD TELLS THE STORY

A windshield shatters, and a man dies. This was the story Wednesday night when a 46-year-old man whose identity is being withheld pending identification and notification of the family, was struck by a car shortly after 9 p.m. on Pennsylvania ave., E. near Alston. According to police the victim apparently stepped directly into the side of the car driven by Paul M. English, Starbrick, fell forward and through the windshield. The victim was pronounced dead at Warren General Hospital. Death was attributed to a depressed skull fracture and multiple limb fractures, according to a hospital spokesman. See story on page two. ## Bell Telephone Co. of Pa. Makes 'End of Line' Offer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Bell Telephone Co. of Pennsylvania made Wednesday what it said was "an end of the line" offer for ending a strike of 13,000 Federation of Telephone Workers of Pennsylvania.

Bell said the new offer for the third time fattened the more than $21 million wage and benefits package in a three-year contract proposed May 3 by adding 10 communities to a list of 18 previously upgraded to higher wage zones.

Added to the list, a Bell spokesman said, were Greensburg, Rochester, Beaver Falls, Midland, Zellenople, Connellsville, Dawson, Mt. Pleasant, Perryopolis and Scottsdale. Upgrading of the communities means higher maximum rates for affected employees.

For example: A plant department switchman in Greensburg now earning $154.50 a week would receive an additional $4 a week immediately due to upgrading plus $24 a week increase in wages over a three-year period.

W. W. Kinkel, Bell's chief negotiator, said the company had "reached the end of the line as far as what we can offer."

He told the independent union Bell would be willing to make the wage provision retroactive to April 21 if the proposal "is accepted at a reasonable hour tomorrow (Thursday) and the members are directed to return to work."

Bell said that during the life of the proposed three-year contract, minimum weekly wage rates would be increased from $11 to $18 and maximum weekly wage scales would go up from $16 to $24.

The increases would be in three stages, Bell said, on the date the contract becomes effective, and on the first and second anniversaries of the effective date.

Meanwhile, negotiators for Bell and the Pennsylvania Telephone Guild, an independent union representing 2,600 business office employees, continued talks on a new contract.

An 18-month wage reopener clause in a three-year contract expires at midnight. However, the union has asked that the old contract be scrapped and a new one negotiated.

Men Trapped in Flooded Coal Mine May Be Rescued Late Today

HOMINY FALLS, W. Va. (AP) — It will be at least Thursday evening before rescuers can bring out the 15 miners known to be alive in a water-filled coal mine, the president of the company that owns the mine said Wednesday.

C. E. Richardson of the Maust Coal and Coke Co., told relatives and friends of the trapped miners at 6 p.m. (EDT) that "it will be at least 24 hours" before the passageway is pumped out. Twenty-five men were entombed in the mine Monday noon when the wall of an adjoining abandoned mine cracked, filling a 2-mile long passageway with water.

The known survivors are in spaces that allow only a few to stand erect.

Confusion developed Wednesday on the identities of the men trapped in three separate groups. No word has been received from the men farthest into the mine when waters from an adjoining mine poured in Monday. They are feared dead. Company officials have not released a list of the men in each group, but said there were 10 two miles deep in the mountain, two at a point 1 1/2 miles in, and 13 one mile from the mine entrance.

But Wednesday, a rescue worker said there were 14 in the group nearest the mouth and nine at the two-mile point. He said two brothers, Otis and Oscar Dillon, first thought to be in the uncontacted group, were in fact among the men known to be alive and well. And he said, one of the men believed safe, was in the uncontacted group.

Officials later conducted a head count and confirmed the groups were made up of 13, 2 and 10 men.

But it became known Otis Dillon was among the safe group because he developed stomach cramps and a doctor had to be called to diagnose his ailment over the telephone and to send him medication.

Mrs. Dillon stood by the physician, Dr. Lee B. Todd of Quinwood, as he talked with her husband.

"It's not serious," she said. "He's had ulcers for some time." Then other wives talked to their husbands. "How are you feeling, honey?" asked Mrs. Elton Collins.

"With my fingers," came the joking reply.

The daughter of Lonnie Bennett, Billie White, cried when she heard her father's "hi."

"Come up soon, daddy—we're waiting," she said.

Ten pumps drawing 3,200 gallons of water a minute from the mine had lowered the level enough to enable workers to move equipment more than halfway to the spot where the first group of miners was.

State Stresses Scenic Beauty of Route 6 In Talk on Highway Improvements Here

"A road that passes through one of the most beautiful sections of Pennsylvania should be a scenic roadway."

This in general was the theme Frederick B. Atwood, Deputy Secretary of Highways, emphasized as he opened his featured talk to the Route 6 Roosevelt Highway Association meeting at the Penn-Laurel Motel yesterday afternoon. He stressed that the portion of Northern Pennsylvania traversed by Route 6 is largely unspoiled and it would be to the best interests of the association's members to stress the area's image in formulating their highway plans.

Further along in his talk, Atwood said that while cross-state 4-lane highways appealed to the person traveling from one state to another, the very nature of the countryside in the vicinity of the Route 6 course would prove most attractive to the tourist looking for outdoor recreation and that limited access highways were not popular with this group of travelers. However, he said, improvement of Route 6 was considered as a must with the highway department and that 13 projects had been approved when the Department's 6-year plan was outlined three years ago. Of these, three aren't already programmed, but the others are "in the works."

The main problem, Atwood stated, is finance. At the present time federal funds have been cut back and problems stand in the way of the state financing the projects now and recovering the federal share at a later date. With the things that needed to be done costing huge amounts of money, and any number of items requiring almost immediate attention, the pressure on the Department of Highways programming schedule is being felt in all areas.

"If you think you have trouble balancing your personal checkbook, come down to Harrisburg and I'll show you a real problem," Atwood told his audience.

Adding to the problem, Atwood said, is the fact that the federal government is borrowing from federal highway funds to the extent that the Bureau of

Senate, House OK 10% Retroactive Tax Surcharge

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON — A 10 per cent tax surcharge, retroactive to April 1 for individuals and January 1 for corporations was agreed to late Wednesday by a joint Senate-House committee.

At the same time, the group agreed to improve a mandatory $6 billion cut in federal spending in the new fiscal year beginning July 1.

Under the joint committee's plan, tax withholding at the higher rate would begin 15 days after the tax increase was signed into law.

Thus many individuals would find they owed more taxes than usual—or had a smaller than usual refund—next April 15, because the next tax rates would have been in effect for longer than the new withholding rates.

The effective date of April 1 for the proposed surcharge means the increase in 1968 taxes for individuals would be only 7.5 per cent—that is, 10 per cent for three quarters of a year.

The surcharge is based on the amount of taxes that an individual would pay under existing law, rather than based on his income.

Wednesday's agreement on the surcharge and the spending cuts was announced by Rep. Wilbur D. Mills D-Ark., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee and chairman also of the joint Senate-House conference committee on tax matters.

Though the conference committee did not finish its work on the tax bill Wednesday it will try to do so today now that the most difficult and controversial provision of the bill has been settled.

Many other controversies remain, however. The conference committee is responsible for reconciling the differences between two separate tax bills passed earlier by the House and Senate. The Senate's bill contained many extraneous amendments, relating to textile quotas, welfare payments, taxation on nonprofit organizations and a large number of other matters.

There were no predictions on when the bill might come before the House and Senate for approval even assuming the conference committee finished its work today.

Inclusion in the bill of the $6 billion spending cut, rather than $4 billion that President Johnson had set as the outside practicable limit, seemed to assure widespread Republican support for the measure.

Rep. John W. Byrnes of Wisconsin, the ranking Republican of the Ways and Means Committee, said he would vote for the bill, now that it included the $6 billion spending cut.

It seemed likely that the main

V.C. Drive Slackens On Eve of Peace Talks

SAIGON (AP) — The Communist command's new drive against Saigon slackened Thursday on the eve of preliminary Vietnam peace talks in Paris.

Elsewhere in South Vietnam, enemy gunners shelled two allied airbases and four other military installations. Ten rockets hit the Da Nang airbase but no casualties were reported and damage was termed negligible. One South Vietnamese soldier died in a rocket attack on government headquarters in Da Nang City.

Sounds of battle had rumbled through Saigon earlier as American troops swept into the capital's southwestern outskirts to head off enemy forces trying to break in.

In the far north, North Vietnamese rockets struck South Vietnamese installations at the big allied base of Da Nang and Quang Tri, but the enemy made no attempt to follow up with a ground attack.

This followed the pattern of the widespread attacks Sunday on more than 100 South Vietnamese cities and military installations. The allies believe the blows were intended to strengthen North Vietnam in talks in Paris this week, and they braced for more such attacks.

Only in and around Saigon have the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese kept up a ground attack since Sunday, but the fighting inside Saigon died down.

President Voices Hope Peace Talks Will Bear Fruit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Shortly before the U.S. delegation's takeoff for its meeting with North Vietnamese envoys, President Johnson voiced cautious hope Wednesday that the Paris talks will lead to an honorable peace.

Speaking to Thailand's visiting prime minister about his campaign to—as the President put it—"begin the work of healing" the bitter Southeast Asian conflict with the Reds, Johnson said:

"There is hope now, finally, some hope that that offer will bear fruit and that an honorable peace could come."

A six-man U.S. delegation headed by veteran diplomat W. Averell Harriman is slated to leave Washington at 7:30 a.m. EDT Thursday aboard a U.S. Air Force plane arriving in Paris about 8 p.m. French time. The Vietnam talks are scheduled to start Friday.

The Thai prime minister, Thanom Kittikachorn, arrived at the White House for a two-day official visit which is one of the series of meetings that Johnson has been holding with leaders of nations allied in the Vietnam war.

Like the other Asian allies, Thanom reportedly was anxious that his country be fully consulted on any U.S. dealings with the Reds. And he had previously made known his doubts that the Communists really want peace. However, Thanom declared on his arrival that Thailand joins the United States in seeking "a genuine peace which is not a facade covering a surrender—but a peace which guarantees freedom and the right for small nations to exist with dignity and independence."

Johnson reaffirmed to the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization military ally that the United States "remains involved in and concerned with the future of human freedom throughout the world."

The U.S. aim in Vietnam, the President said, is "to help a nation in its struggle to determine its own destiny." And he pledged again that U.S. troops will pull out of that country when this objective "becomes secure."

Route 6

Public Roads is going hungry. A supplementary appropriation is in the hopper but so far Congress has failed to act, and that the state intends to borrow from other funds to keep the highway program going if it has to.

To further point out the financial problem that exists, Atwood said that last year's program called for an expenditure of $400 million. Only about $100 million of this came from sources such as the sale of licenses. He broke this down as $49 million from cars and station wagons, $45 million from trucks and busses, $13½ million from driver licenses, and the rest from lesser sources.

Following Atwood's talk, Harold Reslink of Erie, a member of the Pennsylvania Highway Commission, endorsed the speaker's views on the beauty of the countryside through which Route 6 passes and the suggestion that the design of future highways should be such that this beauty would be retained. Reslink also pointed out that while Route 6 was not the top ranking road within the scope of the Commission's concern, it was being favorably considered as indicated by the project already scheduled.

Dan Troxell, chief engineer District 1, reported on improvements being made to Route 6 throughout his district. Commenting on the meeting at which the Youngsville bypass was under construction and should be finished by February next year, the Warren bypass was in final planning and should be advertised for bids by late 1970, the Starbrick improvement was in planning, and that the Irvine bridge (Route 62 across the Allegheny River) would be replaced and should be advertised by March of 1969.

Russell Weston, a commissioner from McKean County, pointed out the real need for some road work on the road leading to the Kinzua Bridge where a state park is to be established at some time in the future. He said that even gravel fill to smooth out the chuckholes would be appreciated. Then he called to the attention of those present the value the Kinzua Bridge State Park would have as an attraction to those traveling Route 6 and asked that the Association endorse a proposal to the Department of Forests and Waters that the park which has been authorized for five years be considered for immediate construction. He stated flatly that he believed Secretary Goddard's attitude was responsible for the delay to date.

The only matter of business coming before the meeting was a resolution that would encourage the control of billboards along Route 6 by county and township authorities. An amendment to include junkyards was added. A committee will be appointed to firm up the resolution and present it at the next meeting of the Association.

About 100 persons from all parts of the state through which Route 6 passes attended the meeting.

Brush Fire Put Out

Warren Borough firemen were called to the scene of two fires Wednesday. At 5:30 p.m. a brush fire broke out along side a garage on Water st. near the Market st. plaza. Ten minutes later at 5:40 firemen were summoned to Beaty Junior where a tree along Conewango Creek was burning. Both fires were extinguished almost immediately, according to firemen. There was no serious damage reported.

Youngsville Kiwanians Meet

A new plan for meals in a new place was the schedule Tuesday evening for the Youngsville Kiwanis Club when they met at the Lutheran Church dining room for a planned dinner. The self-service dinner was deemed successful.

Kiwanians viewed a film "The American Spectacle," which showed 30 or more spectacular places in America from Cape Cod and the Bahamas on the east, through the Great Smokies, Niagara Falls, the Mississippi River, the great central plains with buffalo herds, sandstone buttes, Yellowstone, Yosemite to the Pacific Coast, Alaska and ending with the volcanoes of Hawaii.

The film was loaned by Warren Public Library and shown by Tom Meabon, who will be leaving the club this year. Appreciation was expressed for his services as projectionist during the past year.

It was announced the club would participate in the street fair to be conducted soon by the Youngsville Business Association. Next week, May 14, will be a work night in preparation for the chicken barbecue on June 15.

President Hank Lane presided at the meeting with Lyston Knapenberger pronouncing the invocation and Ralph Paylor, the benediction. Rook Oviatt led the music.

Pentagon Remains Silent On Viet Cong Infiltration

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon is remaining close-mouthed on how North Vietnam was able to infiltrate 80,000 to 100,000 troops into South Vietnam this year despite a $1 billion obstacle system below the DMZ.

Defense officials have apparently chosen to ignore all questions about the effectiveness of the anti-infiltration setup, announced last Sept. 7 by Robert S. McNamara, then secretary of defense.

McNamara ordered officials at the time not to discuss operational details which might help the enemy learn how to overcome the system.

But the Defense Department has extended this cloak of secrecy to cover such questions as how much tax money has been and will be spent on the barrier, and whether the system is having any discernible effect on infiltration. Past, present and future spending figures on the project — code named Dye Marker-Muscle Shoals — have been stamped classified. Cost estimates were deleted by Pentagon censors from recently released testimony by defense officials who appeared earlier this year before the Senate Armed Services Committee.

More than once, however, Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., after being given a breakdown of the cost, referred to the barrier as a billion dollar Maginot line concept.

Richard Fryklund, a Pentagon spokesman, told a reporter: the money figures are being kept secret to prevent North Vietnam from knowing the scope of the barrier. Although the Pentagon has said the barrier would only be installed in South Vietnamese territory below the demilitarized zone, a high Laotian government source in Vientiane said Jan. 23 its electronic features were being extended into Laos.

The system — sometimes referred to as "McNamara's wall" — includes a series of front-line strongpoints linked with strips of barbed wire, mine fields and air-born seismic devices that sound an alarm when troops or vehicles move into the area.

Military officers who are cautiously willing to discuss the project say the electronic devices set off signals in C121 aircraft, enabling the special electronics plane to order bombers to the scene.

"It's a warning system, that's all," one officer said. He added that the same devices used in the barrier played a key role in the defense of Khe Sanh.

Exactly how many troops have infiltrated directly across the DMZ and the barrier this year, and how many were sent over adjacent Laotian trails is not known.

The Pentagon acknowledges that heavy movement continues in both areas, and the matter has raised serious concern among administration officials preparing to begin preliminary peace talks with Hanoi in Paris.

Top ranking military men have never been enthusiastic about the barrier idea, remembering that static or passive defenses such as the French Maginot and German Siegfried lines of World War II proved to be big failures in the past.

Some officers also feared that Dye Marker-Muscle Shoals would be used as an excuse for stopping the bombing of North Vietnam.

The bombing has now been limited as part of President Johnson's move to get peace talks started, but whether the establishment of the barrier was a factor in this decision is not known.

Letters written by James A. Garfield before he became President are readily obtainable, but the few letters he wrote personally during his six months in office are rare and valuable.

Man, 46, Is Killed Wed. When Struck by Car

A 46-year-old man, whose identity has been withheld pending identification and notification of the family, was killed Wednesday when he was struck by a car on Pennsylvania ave. near Alton st.

The victim was pronounced dead on arrival at Warren General Hospital shortly after 9 p.m. by Dr. A. J. Turbess. Cause of death, according to a hospital spokesman, was attributed to a depressed skull fracture and multiple limb fractures. Dr. Donald J. Furman, acting coroner, signed the death certificate, the spokesman stated.

According to police, the accident occurred at 9:11 p.m. Paul M. English, 2580 Pennsylvania ave. W. ext., Starbrick, was driving west on Pennsylvania ave. The victim, police said, was standing on the south curb of the avenue. The victim called to a boy across the avenue "How far to Kane?" according to police. The boy answered, police stated, but the victim apparently did not hear the answer and started to cross Pennsylvania ave.

Indications are, police said, the victim stepped directly into the side of the English car, fell forward and hit the windshield. The accident is still under investigation.

An accident involving four cars on Madison avenue shortly after 5 p.m. Thursday resulted in property damages totalling $3,050 according to borough police.

The accident occurred at 5:10 p.m., police report, when a car driven by John Fago, 28 N. Carver st., traveling south on Carver st., struck the left rear fender of a car operated by Vincent Mills, RD8, Sugar Grove, traveling west on Madison ave.

According to police Fago will be charged with failure to yield the right of way.

An accident earlier in the day caused estimated total damages of $600 to two other vehicles operated by Walter Stepanko, 128 Kennedy st., Bradford and Mary S. Curtis, 991 Jackson st. Ext.

Mrs. Curtis sustained a whip lash injury according to police when the car she was operating struck the Stepanko operated vehicle broadside. Damage to each vehicle was set at $300 police said.

According to police Mrs. Curtis will be charged with a right of way violation.

Sen. George Murphy to Speak At GOP Dinner in Jamestown

JAMESTOWN, N.Y.—Jess A. Present, chairman of the Chautauque County Republican committee, announced Wednesday California Sen. George Murphy will be the principal speaker at the 1968 fund raising dinner of the local GOP. The $50 a plate dinner is scheduled for June 20 at Floral Hall on the County Fairground in Dunkirk, N.Y. Present will serve as general chairman of the event.

Senator Murphy was elected to the U.S. Senate in 1964 when the opposition Democratic party was sweeping the state of California in an election which saw Richard Nixon defeated by Gov. Pat Brown. Senator Murphy defeated former JFK press secretary Pierre Salinger. Murphy entered politics after a long time career in show business where he starred in more than 40 films some of which are now enjoying local TV exposure. He also appeared in more than half a dozen plays on Broadway.

It was the second giant campus reception for Rockefeller, the other coming last week at the University of Iowa.

He made the statement during a question-and-answer session after he finished his prepared remarks. A student asked where he differs from Nixon.

He added that the same devices used in the barrier played a key role in the defense of Khe Sanh.

Exactly how many troops have infiltrated directly across the DMZ and the barrier this year, and how many were sent over adjacent Laotian trails is not known.

School Demonstrations Seem Marked by Hardening Attitudes

NEW YORK (AP) — Concessions by school administrators halted student unrest on some U.S. campuses Wednesday, but continuing demonstrations elsewhere were marked by a hardening attitude on both sides.

An attorney representing 11 students, alumni and faculty members of New York's troubled Columbia University asked for a federal court injunction to halt disciplinary action arising from recent campus disorders. The petition also sought to prevent further action by city police who last week forcibly removed sit-in demonstrators from a number of school buildings.

The university threatened legal action against any persons who make public documents alleged to have been taken from the office of Columbia President Grayson Kirk by demonstrators protesting the use of city park land as the site of a proposed new gymnasium.

Columbia has an enrollment of approximately 25,000. The disorders began April 24.

Administrative employees of Stanford University in California returned to their desks despite a continuing sit-in by 400 students who remained for the third day in a building which houses the offices of the registrar, admissions personnel and the dean of men.

The Stanford students are protesting the suspension of seven colleagues who demonstrated last November against campus recruiting by the Central Intelligence Agency.

Stanford's enrollment is about 10,000.

Classes were resumed at Cheyney State College, a predominantly Negro school in Pennsylvania with an enrollment of 1,800, but 200 students stayed for the third day inside a barricaded administration building. The demonstrators are demanding "a better curriculum, a better faculty and a better system of finances."

In Wichita, Kan., half a dozen of 18 Negroes expelled from high school a month ago for disciplinary reasons were turned away when they attempted to return to classes without permission of school officials. They left quietly despite an earlier assertion by a spokesman that they would re-enter school even if threatened with arrest.

At Roosevelt University, a Chicago school of 4,700, seven students circled by about 50 sympathizers began a sit-in in the anteroom of the school president, protesting the administration's refusal to provide a full-time job for Prof. Staughton R. Lynd.

Lynd, a former Yale University faculty member who defied the U.S. State Department by traveling to North Vietnam and Red China in 1965, is on the faculty of Chicago State College and teaches at Roosevelt part time.

At three other schools officials cooled off their campuses by granting a number of student demands.

Wellesley (Mass.) College, which has 1,750 girl students, including 24 Negroes, agreed to admit an additional 20 Negroes for the term beginning next September. A Negro student organization had threatened a hunger strike unless more black undergraduates were enrolled.

Northeastern University in Boston, which has 345 Negro and 11,586 white day students, plus 255 Negroes in night courses, agreed that the class of '71 would be 10 per cent Negro.

Oberlin, an Ohio college of 2,700, issued an order banning the use of school facilities for placement interviews with students by government agencies, universities and corporations. The ban was triggered by student senate opposition to military recruiting on the campus.

Oberlin President Robert K. Carr commented: "I have taken this step very reluctantly because, in my judgment, it involves an erosion, however slight, of the open campus principle and practice that ought to prevail at a college like Oberlin."

Cheyney Students Will Leave Building After Cleaning It Up

CHEYNEY, Pa. (AP) — Cheyney State College students barricaded in the school's administration building they seized Monday said Wednesday they will leave the building as soon as they clean it up.

The building appeared clean, but furniture was scattered about. The students agreed to the evacuation after meeting with Pennsylvania Department of Public Instruction representatives, who consented to start Thursday an investigation the students had sought into the college's facilities, curriculum, faculty and finances.

Belinda Wooten, president-elect of Cheyney's student government, said the 100 to 200 students in the building had agreed to leave the building so that the Department of Public Instruction investigation can get started as soon as possible.

She said, however: "We will start our own investigation and where they (the Department of Public Instruction representatives) go, we'll go."

The demonstrating students had promised Tuesday night to leave the building when an investigating team arrived at the predominantly Negro school of 1,800 enrollment Wednesday.

Asked why they hadn't left the building, Miss Wooten said, "It was just a misunderstanding."

Texas Heart Transplant Patient Dies

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — One of three heart transplant patients at St. Luke's Episcopal Hospital died Wednesday but the chief surgeon said the donor heart still was in such good condition it could have been used in another operation.

The death of James B. Cobb, 48, an Alexandria, La., salesman, was blamed tentatively on an "overwhelming infection" that possibly resulted from a bad reaction to drugs administered to combat rejection of the donor heart.

Dr. Denton A. Cooley, head of the surgical team that performed the three transplants in less than five days, said the donor heart conceivably could have been used again had another recipient been available.

"We've even considered this possibility," Cooley told a news conference. He indicated the idea was discarded because of fear the infection might have been transferred to a new recipient.

Cooley declined to elaborate but said another potential transplant candidate was being flown to Houston by charter plane.

Meanwhile, the two other patients, Everett Claire Thomas, 47, Phoenix, Ariz., and J. M. Stuckwisch, 62, Alpine, Tex., were reported progressing satisfactorily.

Thomas became the world's ninth transplant patient Friday. Cobb became the 11th Sunday, Stuckwisch the 12th Tuesday.

Cobb's condition had been described as excellent Tuesday but he took an abrupt change for the worse Tuesday night and died about eight hours later.

"The transplanted heart was not rejected and functioned well until the unforeseen complications occurred," a hospital announcement said.

JUBILANT VICTOR
An exuberant Robert F. Kennedy addresses enthusiastic throng at campaign headquarters in Indianapolis after Indiana primary election victory. By his side is his wife, Ethel, who along with other members of the Kennedy clan, campaigned vigorously for the New York senator in the Hoosier state.

Bobby Will Duplicate Formula Next Tuesday in Nebraska

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D. N.Y., is ready to duplicate in next Tuesday's Nebraska primary the men, money and movement formula that landed him on top in Indiana's three-man Democratic presidential contest.

But the outcome in Nebraska of his basic contest with Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., could be even less clearcut than the results of the massive effort which gave the New York senator 42 per cent of the Indiana Democratic vote.

President Johnson's name remains on the Nebraska ballot, despite his March 31 announcement that he would not accept renomination. Friends are working quietly to mount a write-in campaign for Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

In the Nebraska foray, to be concentrated in weekend rounds, Kennedy will carry with him the controversy over the money he is spending in an attempt to duplicate the primary sweep that helped his brother, the late John F. Kennedy, win the party nomination in 1960.

Gov. Roger D. Branigan, who noed out McCarthy for second place in Indiana, kept this controversy alive when he said: "I just got whipped. I wrote my own speeches, drove my own car but you can't beat $2 million."

Kennedy denied charges by State Democratic Chairman Gordon St. Angelo that his Indiana campaign expenditures approached the $2 million figure. He said in an election night telecast that his campaign had cost from $550,000 to $600,000.

McCarthy's supporters privately scoffed at this figure, although the Minnesota senator did not challenge it publicly.

At one point, Kennedy leased a passenger train for the movement of his troops.

McCarthy leaned heavily on college volunteers for much of his campaign.

It seemed clear that under Indiana law there would never be an accurate figure on how much was spent by the presidential nomination candidates. Financial reports must be filed with circuit court clerks in the counties in which campaign organization-treasurers reside.

If there are multiple organizations as there always are in such campaigns, reports could be scattered among a number of counties.

As a result of his Indiana victory, in which he outdistanced McCarthy by more than 111,000 votes and Branigan by more than 86,000, Kennedy gets a prior claim on the state's 83 votes toward the 1,312 needed for nomination at the Chicago convention.

But Branigan carried two congressional districts in polling 31 per cent of the total vote to Kennedy's 42 per cent. McCarthy, with 27 per cent, got no claim on any of the delegates.

The Democratic State Committee, controlled by Branigan, can apportion the delegates about any way it chooses. It seemed certain Branigan would salvage some, which perhaps might go to Humphrey.

Area Residents Warned Of Illegal Use of Air Rifles

Warren borough and county are again under attack, according to law enforcement officials. With the advent of spring, the annual epidemic of illegal use of air rifles has started.

Dented windshields on cars and garage windows, children shot by children and song birds as targets, as well as some damage to highway equipment, has been reported to both the sheriff's office and the borough police department.

Two Firms Plan Low Income Housing

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Westinghouse Electric Corp. and Equitable Life Assurance Society announced Wednesday plans to provide housing and money for low-income families.

Westinghouse said it will organize a subsidiary, Urban Systems Development Corp., to provide better housing for low-income families in the nation.

Equitable said it would create a $1 million fund to provide Pittsburgh's ghetto dwellers with mortgage money for the purchase of homes.

Westinghouse will develop low-rise apartment communities, and plans to train construction crews from among hard-core unemployed men now living in slum neighborhoods.

Rex S. Garrett, a 31-year veteran of Westinghouse management, will head the program.

The Equitable plan will enable slum residents to borrow money that other financial institutions are reluctant to loan them. The money will be lent at 6 per cent interest and the mortgage will be fully guaranteed by the Federal Housing Administration.

'Scenic' Route 6

Approximately 100 people interested in the improvement of Route 6 across the northern tier of Pennsylvania gathered in Warren Wednesday to hear state highway officials review future plans for the "scenic" route before the Route 6 Roosevelt Highway Association.

The state officials stressed that it would be in the best interest to keep this "largely unspoiled" beautiful route as Route 6 highway improvement plans formulate.

This is probably the right thing today. Many hate to see these

Confusion at Columbia

Presidential politics aside for just a moment, the news from Columbia University continues to absorb the nation. In the Boston Sunday Globe, for instance, an entire news page is given over to a long story following the headline "Police Report Admits Columbia Mistake."

What is remarkable about the whole business is that a community given over to the pursuit of higher education should have elided the issues that caused the strike on over to the issue of whether there was police brutality in hauling out the students who were illegally occupying the various school buildings belonging to Columbia. One question has absolutely no bearing on the other. If it proved that every single policeman of the one thousand who were dispatched at two in the morning to Columbia to oust the demonstrators had been guilty of brutality, that would be something for the Police Review Board and the authorities at Columbia to take up in connection with quite another problem than the one which brought Columbia to a standstill. But the student organizations have seized on the brutality, or alleged brutality, to justify striking the university and calling for the dismissal of its president and vice president.

A few points should be made: Any concern over police methods should be excluded from consideration of the issues raised at Columbia by the demonstrators — unless someone thinks to raise the preposterous charge that President Grayson Kirk was in collusion with Commissioner Howard Leary and that they secretly agreed to urge the police to be rough in handling the refractory students. Unless such a nexus as this one is established, any consideration of how the police acted should be ruled out of order in all future discussions of the mess in Columbia.

Schools Face 'Crisis' Too

HARRISBURG — When Governor Shafer the other day referred to Pennsylvania as being in a "fiscal crisis" (with state revenue for the year running some $45 million behind estimates) no mention was made of the fact that many a local school district throughout the state also faced similar "fiscal crises!"

It was the "state" crisis that made the headlines, understood, but for the close-to-home impact what is happening in the hustings at the same time on the fiscal front is perhaps much more "touching" from the local taxpayer standpoint.

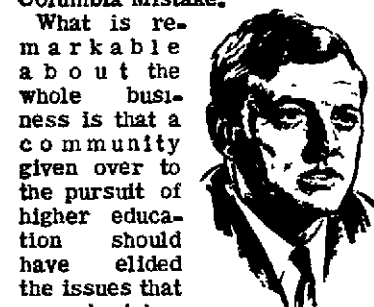

In this particular instance we're referring to local school districts caught in a financial bind because Pennsylvania (with its near $2 billion general fund budget) has been unable to meet its commitments on time to these local school districts. It was the latter part of March that this column disclosed the multi-million-dollar state subsidy payments to local districts due during the month of April "scenic" hillsides torn apart for four-lane highways. But we fail to remember a few years back that this area and others along the northern tier were desperate for quick access to the east coast—whether for pleasure or business.

Then the Keystone Shortway won out over Route 6 and our northern neighbors accommodated us by starting an expressway across the southern tier of New York State.

In view of all this, only a "scenic" Route 6 is left—we guess.

planned an entirely separate building, by contrast to that of the white students, exemplary. In the first place, although they were of course acting illegally, they apparently did not inflict the wanton damage inside the building that their white counterparts did elsewhere, in one of the ugliest aspects of the situation. There was less broken glass, whisky bottles, torn-up furniture. When the police arrived for them they came out peacefully.

3) The altogether independent investigation into the behavior of the police will itself be interesting. It can begin, for which everybody should be grateful, with everybody agreeing that racism, for once, will not figure in the discussions, it having been established that such brutality as there was was against white students, not Negro students. The question will then arise, why such brutality as there was? Preliminary reports suggest that it was a tactical mistake of the Commissioner to have sent out as many plain-clothes men as he did, the suggestion being that those who are unidentifiable as white officers on the one hand are obeyed less instinctively, and on the other, might feel that they can get away with more or less anonymous strong-arming.

The charges of brutality, remember as of the moment, are unproved allegations, and are leveled by the students, who flatly refused to vacate the buildings, thereby requiring the use of force. Also remember there is no completely delicate

TOM WICKER Kennedy's 'Jigsaw' Victory

INDIANAPOLIS — Sen. Robert Kennedy offered his last campaign words to the people of Indiana in midnight television appearances just before the primary voting. Two themes dominated the half-hour color film.

One was his insistence on law and order, coupled with repeated assertions that violence in the cities was "unacceptable." The other was the idea that the federal bureaucracy in Washington is too big and inflexible to meet the varied needs of the nation and that government had to be returned to the people.

This was not exactly demagoguery. No one favors violence, and Kennedy and his Senate staff have done some advanced and useful thinking about the causes of riots and what to do about them, as well as about the necessity for state, local and private responsibility in public affairs. Nevertheless, this was not the emphasis Kennedy had displayed elsewhere. "Law and order" and "bureaucracy" — as well as another Kennedy campaign theme, the necessity to put welfare recipients to work — are well-known slogans guaranteed to evoke a sympathetic response from hardworking, conservative whites, of whom there are quite a few in this so-called "heartland" state.

As the brother of President Kennedy and as an effective champion of the Negro cause when he was attorney general and now that he is a senator, Robert Kennedy had such a grip on the 10 per cent of Indiana's Democrats who are black that he could afford to appeal openly for the votes of whites not particularly sympathetic to Negroes.

This is nothing new in American politics, and many experts have even considered such an approach to a diverse population as a political necessity. But Eugene McCarthy took a sharply different tact here. Actually, he said in a speech at South Bend, there are three kinds of national unity.

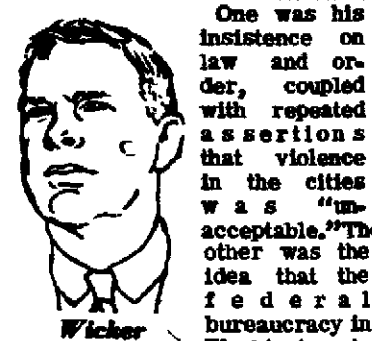

One, offered by Vice President Humphrey, was "a kind of homogenization in which you run things together indiscriminately, a kind of Waring blender sort of politics, in which all the differences really exist but you just don't notice them." Kennedy offered "a kind of jigsaw arrangement." McCarthy said, "Combinations of separate interests or separate groups... out of which sometimes you can get a majority by virtue of the separate unit saying 'In order to get what we want we will help someone get what they want.'"

The Kennedy approach "in the past has had some vitality," McCarthy said, "but in 1968, this is not the order of politics." Rather, he said, he sought to draw a response that would not "be in terms of membership in a special bloc or in a defined group within America; it must be intensely and particularly a personal one in which we call upon everyone... to be as fully responsible, and that means as fully political, as he possibly can. And in so doing we can achieve a genuine unity, first of all a unity of understanding with reference to what our problems are... and then a unity or purpose as we seek to accomplish what we judge must be done."

So McCarthy made no particular appeal to any special group. The last day before the primary, for instance, he failed to appear at a Negro meeting that had expected him in Indianapolis. But neither was he bearing down on themes designed to be attractive to whites or to conservatives or to ethnic groups. The ironic result is that it was Kennedy, not McCarthy, who showed the broadest appeal and the widest range of support.

Kennedy's 42 per cent of the vote was won not just among the blacks of Gary and Indianapolis, although he won them by huge totals; he carried the southern-oriented counties along the Ohio River, scored a clear majority among the Slavic minorities in the industrial cities, and won first place in 51 of Indiana's 92 counties, carrying rural and urban alike.

So what McCarthy called the "old approach" of putting together "a combination of minorities" obviously prevailed among Indiana Democrats. McCarthy remains very much a live politically and the 27 per cent he received here will make him an even more serious contender in later primaries. He has yet to show, however, that Americans are ready for a candidate who will only "appeal to everyone as a person... to pass an intellectual judgment upon what was needed for this country."

About to Resume Bombing

WASHINGTON—President Johnson was just about ready to resume full air attacks on North Vietnam when the communists dramatically broke the impasse over a truce site.

He had received an urgent warning from the Joint Chiefs that the Viet Cong were planning another spectacular attack upon Saigon with the American Embassy again a prime target.

Details of the plan had been supplied by a high-ranking defector, known by the code name "Hanoi 8," who had given his information while strapped to a lie detector. His story was also confirmed by captured enemy documents.

The President concluded, therefore, that the North Vietnamese were stalling the truce talks until they could mount their offensive. The purpose would be to strengthen their bargaining position as the negotiations began.

The Viet Cong always withhold the timetable from their battle plans until the last possible minute, so U.S. intelligence officers could only speculate when the attack might be attempted. The defector thought May 1, a red-letter day on the communist calendar, would be most likely. It was also speculated that the Viet Cong might choose May 19, the 78th birthday of Ho Chi Minh. Significantly, an attack began on the weekend before the Paris talks were scheduled to start.

As May 1 approached, President Johnson began to share the Joint Chiefs' qualms over the bombing curbs. His concern was compounded by intelligence reports that 70,000 North Vietnamese regulars had infiltrated into the South since the bombing pullback. Through Vietnamese, Laos, which had become the relay point for preliminary messages, he sent word that he wouldn't hold back his bombers much longer while Hanoi quibbled over a truce site.

When Alice Roosevelt Longworth paid her respects to King Olav of Norway recently, she recalled how her father, the late President Theodore Roosevelt, had taken her as a young girl to call on the Norwegian royal family.

"The King was only five years old at that time," Mrs. Longworth said. "He was such a cute little boy."

Mrs. Longworth, now over 80, this time found King Olav to be a very solid, square-shouldered monarch, weighing about 200 pounds. He was royally welcomed first by President Johnson, who hailed him as a "non-political man," then by Vice President Humphrey, whose mother was Norwegian, and then by Chief Justice Warren, whose father was born in Norway.

"I shall be happy to have you in Minnesota," said Vice President Humphrey, "provided you do not run for public office."

Stock Trading Explosion—IV

In the next fortnight, the New York Stock Exchange will announce a giant step toward eliminating the transfer of paper stock certificates between brokerage firms when you buy and sell securities, thereby curbing the archaic and increasingly massive movement of paper which has threatened to overwhelm Wall Street during days of fantastic trading volume.

Unless you are a Wall Streeteer, the technical details of the new Central Certificate Service, to be activated at the start for 320 stocks accounting for 30 per cent of the NYSE's volume, are unimportant to you. Actually, if you notice any change, it will be that your brokerage firm seems more orderly. But the coming of the CCS is a highly significant story because it underlines the extent to which Wall Street is automating itself in order to handle today's volume of trading and to be prepared to handle tomorrow's.

The upsurge in trading in stocks, set off by President Johnson's March 31 bid for peace in Vietnam, is not likely to continue at April's pace. Last month, the daily volume of the Big Board soared to a fantastic average of over 15,000,000 shares.

ers before he let loose his tough "bite-the-bullet" attack on the Ways and Means Committee. Having served 30 years on Capitol Hill, LBJ knows that you don't rile Congressmen except as a last resort.

But Johnson also has a very high regard for the Presidency and has studied the battles which Harry Truman staged to preserve the rights of the Executive. Before the Potsdam Conference when Truman was urged to take Senate advisers with him for the talks with Stalin and Churchill, he refused, pointing out that to negotiate foreign policy was the business of the President.

Again after the Korean War got started, Truman was urged to get Senate approval of the war by a special resolution. He refused, pointing out that the United Nations had already OK'd the war.

The present impasse with Rep. Wilbur Mills, the Arkansas chairman of the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee, is viewed by President Johnson as a means of hamstringing the Executive by refusal to increase taxes and thereby indirectly writing the federal budget.

At the off-the-record White House meeting, however, Johnson went a long way by reluctantly agreeing to a $4 billion cut in the 1969 budget, plus other cuts.

After unfolding the plan he looked around the room for reaction. There was none.

Finally, Rep. Carl Albert of Oklahoma, the Democratic House Leader, broke the silence. Carl is short, mild-mannered, dedicated to honest government, and has supported the public good even when he knew it would hurt him politically as in open housing.

"I'll buy that," he said quietly.

"I'll go along," agreed Speaker John McCormack of Boston.

"I think the proposition is perfectly fair," said George Mahon of Texas, after some hesitation.

But Chairman Wilbur Mills, who had opposed a tax increase for nine long months, was silent.

"What about you, Wilbur?" asked the President.

"Well, I'll consider it," replied the cautious Arkansan.

"That's not what I asked," challenged the President. "Are you for it or aren't you for it? Yes or no?"

"All right, I'll go along," said Mills.

But the next day in the Ways and Means Committee Mills reneged. He said he would pass the ten per cent surtax increase only if the administration cut $6 billion from the 1969 budget instead of $4 billion. This is what got the President sore. He knew that the Dixiecrat-Republican coalition was trying to cut education, antipoverty and welfare. So he issued his "stand up like men and answer the roll call" blast at Congress. It was a deliberately calculated blast and it got results. The Ways and Means Committee voted out a tax increase 17 to 16.

our brokerage firm to hold our securities in "street name." For transactions by us, the bookkeeping system makes complete sense. It will erase by as much as 75 per cent the processing and physical movement of stock certificates among brokers. It will, in the words of Robert W. Haack, president of the New York Stock Exchange, "create for securities a fluidity of movement comparable to the way checks move money through the banking system."

This is by far the biggest measure being taken to handle the paperwork avalanche. Other steps have been taken, though, and the fact that Wall Street's back offices almost broke down under the trading strain in January in a way forced the firms to prepare to handle April.

Now further moves are under consideration, ranging from a totally new type of ticker to a new NYSE headquarters building with the most modern facilities in lower Manhattan.

The stock trading explosion was an extraordinary outburst for spring of 1968 but it is only a forecast of what is to come.

SYLVIA PORTER

But after more than a decade of planning and experimenting, the NYSE has developed the CCS, a computerized central handling system which will make transfers of securities among NYSE firms by electronic bookkeeping entries. When you buy your 100 shares of Telephone, a computer at a central office will simply make a bookkeeping entry indicating that the firm representing the seller has delivered the 100 shares to the firm representing you.

Of course, if you want to take possession of your certificates in your own name, you'll still be able to do so. But most of us don't want that bother. We want

Candidates On Mom's Day

WASHINGTON — With Mother's Day coming up on Sunday, it seemed a good time to find out what the presidential candidates' policies were on motherhood in the United States.

I first checked at Hubert Humphrey headquarters: "Vice President Hubert Humphrey supports the same motherhood policies of President Johnson," a Humphrey spokesman informed me. "Although there are no easy solutions to motherhood, he will remind the voters that President Johnson has done more for mothers in the last Administration than all the other 35 Presidents put together. Mothers now have better hospital benefits, educational facilities, welfare payments and Social Security advantages than ever before."

"Under the Johnson-Humphrey Administration, mothers are happier than ever and Humphrey believes that a happy mother is a good mother, a responsible mother and a mother who will thrive in a Great Society. He feels those candidates who would use the mother issue to divide America can only hurt the Democratic Party."

I thanked him very much and went over to Bobby Kennedy headquarters, where I was turned over to the chairman of the Mothers for Kennedy, a subdivision of the Parents for Kennedy, which is a subdivision of the Families for Kennedy, which is under the Kennedys for Kennedy department.

"I think Bobby Kennedy's record on motherhood speaks for itself," said the chairman. "At the same time, the senator believes that a lot more must be done for mothers, not only for the rich mothers, but the underprivileged mothers and the disenfranchised mothers, and the mothers of twins and triplets as well as the mothers of farmers and factory workers and fruit pickers and college students. Did I leave anybody out?"

"You forgot the mothers of politicians."

"Yes, and mothers of businessmen, too. In order to give mothers everything they so richly deserve, it will take new, inspiring leadership. We cannot solve the problems of birth with the same old tired formulas of yesterday. If the senator is elected, he will give new dynamic leadership to the mother problem and close the gap between those mothers who have lots of children and those who have very few."

At Sen. McCarthy's headquarters, a spokesman said:

"Sen. McCarthy was the first one to speak out for mothers when he went as a lonely candidate into New Hampshire without money, friends or support. When McCarthy proved that President Johnson was vulnerable on the mother question, Bobby Kennedy tried to take the issue away from him. The Kennedy forces have been pouring in millions of dollars trying to win mothers away from McCarthy. But the college kids who have been supporting Sen. McCarthy are here and they know it takes more than money to become a mother."

At Nixon headquarters, a Nixon volunteer said, "Richard Nixon believes there should be a moratorium declared by all candidates on motherhood at this time. The subject is too delicate to discuss while negotiations are going on."

"Before solving the problems of mothers, we have to get our financial house in order," he continued.

"We cannot make promises to mothers that we cannot keep. At the same time, Nixon believes more must be done for mothers, mainly through private enterprise."

At Gov. Rockefeller's headquarters, the receptionist said that Gov. Rockefeller was still working on a paper outlining his views on motherhood. She refused to say where the governor stood at this time, but indicated that Rockefeller would take a moderate approach somewhere between Nixon's hard line of mothers and Bobby Kennedy's radical approach to the issue.

VIEWS ON TOURISM

Big Business

By Charles Tranter
KQVB Executive

The fact that tourism and vacationing is big business has only recently been accepted by many of us who live in a potentially great resort and recreation area, but in other parts of the nation and the world, this fact has been known for many years.

In many nations, tourism is a major item in their accounts with the rest of the world and in Florida, Nevada, New Jersey and the District of Columbia, tourism is rated as their most important industry. The magnitude of the recreation travel business is indicated by the fact that the combined annual payrolls of 12 of the Nation's largest companies are equal to only one-half of annual tourist expenditures.

In Warren County, the question is asked: What's in it for me? The answer again lies in the figures. Travelers and tourists, in the United States spend about $30 billion yearly. Cash returns from 24 tourists per day benefit a community as much as a factory with an annual payroll of $100,000.

Where does the tourist dollar go? Thirty-one cents from each dollar of travel sales are passed on as personal income. Thirty-five cents of each dollar are passed on to other merchants for the cost of goods sold. Fourteen cents from each dollar of travel sales are passed on to merchants who supply such services as utilities, supplies, and maintenance. Thirteen cents out of each dollar of travel sales go to state and local governments in the form of tax revenue.

One of the more fascinating statistics is that driving for pleasure is the Nation's most important outdoor recreation activity. More Americans engage in it more often than in swimming, boating, hunting, fishing or any of the other sports. It accounts for 42 percent of all outdoor recreation.

Are Warren and Forest counties in the tourist business? Let the figures from the year 1967 give the answer. Last year, there were 1,657,000 visitors to the Kinzua Dam and Reservoir area and this exceeds the estimate for the year 1976!

Furthermore, 75 percent of those using the area for recreation came from outside a 30 mile distance. It is estimated, also, that 840,000 persons stopped at the overlook of the Kinzua Dam. No doubt about it — we are already in the tourist business.

The fact that this area has the resources and the potential for a new industry has been known for at least ten years, particularly since in 1956, the Arthur D. Little company made a special study for the Warren County Development Association.

Its findings and recommendations at that time are still valid today although we are getting a late start in the promotion and development of our now existing vacationland. In brief, Arthur D. Little recommended the establishment of a strong independent vacation and tourist promotion agency supported by the business community and oriented toward a regional appeal.

The report also recommended the development of new facilities, attractions and accommodations if we are to compete with the well-established Poconos, Adirondacks, and the New England States.

Now, since the formation of the Kinzua Dam Vacation Bureau, these recommendations are beginning to be followed even though it will be a number of years until some of the proposed developments actually take form.

Plain talk about what we in Warren County must do to cash in on the vacation industry came on January 25, 1967 when Richard Costley, the U. S. Forest Service director of recreation, spoke to a gathering in the court house.

Mr. Costley said: "Give the people a choice when they get here; the reservoir and the mountains and the camping are here already, develop other attractions such as golf courses, riding stables, historical attractions. People spend money at resorts, motels, and parks — develop these and create a package for the family to enjoy."

About the time that Mr. Costley spoke in Warren, the Development Association and the Chamber of Commerce started the formation of the vacation bureau and for the past sixteen months a steering committee has been laying the groundwork for a strong, useful agency that will function in perpetuity for the betterment of the region.

From the first, the leaders of the bureau have stated their belief in the regional approach to promotion, realizing the benefits of getting travelers into the general area of several counties which as a group can offer a greater variety of appeals than can one county.

The bureau is especially pleased that the leaders of Forest County have agreed to cooperate with Warren County and that the Kinzua Dam Vacation Bureau can begin to promote both counties.

The vacation bureau's primary purpose is to tell others about the recreation area we have now and, at the same time encourage the development of other features and accommodations for use by visitors.

The development of a complete resort area will be a long-range project but population growth, combined with increasing per capita travel and other factors will produce a strong upward trend in recreation demand. The population estimate for the end of the century is 350 million — almost double the 1960 level. This huge population will generate millions of recreation seekers.

Leisure time is increasing steadily. Shorter work days mean longer evenings to participate in recreation activities. More 2 and 3 day weekends and longer paid vacations enable families to extend the radius and frequency of their travel.

Will Warren and Forest counties benefit from tourism. It will — if we continue to plan, to develop, to promote and advertise and, above all, if we have an interested, enthused citizenry willing to take advantage of the outdoor recreation industry which, according to predictions, will triple by the year 2000.

By DON NEAL

When Hubert Burke came to Warren as the project leader of the first federally operated center for the study of forest recreation in the nation it wasn't just happenstance. Burke was picked for the job because of his qualifications and experience. And the results he obtained from the various projects he conducted while in the post indicated that the choice had been a good one.

So in considering Warren County's potential for tourism, which is all important at the present time, perhaps we should accept guidance from this man who was not only familiar with the problems the promotion of tourism presents, but with the specific problems confronting the county in which he lived. In the many conversations I had with him I was always impressed by his awareness of our local problems.

In fact, I often mentioned this to him. And he would tell me that there was no difference between the problems in Warren County and those of Washington County, Maine, as both counties had almost identical appeal for the tourist. Then he would caution me, though, to be careful in making comparisons. Not to try to compare Warren County with the long-established tourist counties of other New England states, for as these counties had reached higher stages of development their problems had changed.

Burke saw Warren County as a place with great natural beauty untainted by commercialization. A gem in the rough that could be fashioned into the finest recreation area in the East if the promotion of its natural features was properly directed. And by "proper direction" he apparently meant attracting the type of tourist who would readily adapt to the recreational opportunities the county had to offer.

For in a bulletin authored by him and published by the Cooperative Extension Service of Maine, "A Planning Guide for Outdoor Recreation for Washington County," he stressed the importance of attracting the proper tourist to the proper recreation environment. There would be little sense, he said, in attempting to attract the type of tourist accustomed to the "motel-noter planned activities complexes" in adjacent states, for these persons would soon be bored. They seek the commercially advertised type of amusement that, as a rule, can be found anywhere. And because they cannot adapt to the fundamental outdoor recreational opportunities, they go home disappointed.

Either that, Burke said, or they encourage the type of honky-tonk establishments that have always been objectionable in those areas that have a high appeal for the "hip" crowd. Instead of this, Burke said, the appeal should be directed to the vacationer who has appreciation for the natural attractions which exist within the county. The hunter, fisherman, camper, nature lover, hiker, bird watcher, or pleasure driver who needs nothing more than the unspoiled countryside to have the time of his life and goes back to his home with a genuine desire to return at the earliest possible moment.

In general, Burke views tend to agree with the viewpoints of other recreation specialists who say that the time has come when specialization in tourist promotion will be as important as it is now in other fields of product promotion. That the time when an area could promote everything from backpacking into primitive camping areas to dancing to a leading dance band after playing a championship 18-hole golf course is past. Not because the combination is improbable, but because the types of tourists who would respond to either appeal are incompatible at the extremes and are even mildly so in the middle area.

Relative to this, Burke, in another study, said, "Many who find status and self-gratification in the luxury resort look down on those who camp out in sleeping bags. Many who find status and self-gratification through backpacking in the wilderness deride the luxury resort's comfort and decri the 'invasion' of lower-class dance halls into the mountain towns. The intensity with which these attitudes are voiced suggests that something quite personal is at stake. It suggests that outdoor recreation is deeply involved with the individual's problems of self-identification."

Are the recreation experts right? Can it be that the true outdoorist is adverse to mixing with what he considers to be a "synthetic" variety of enthusiasts? If they are, then Warren County's promotional problems are lessened. We can concentrate on bringing more and more of the thousands upon thousands of true outdoorists who already journey to the county and find our non-commercial attractions entirely fulfilling. Otherwise, it could be our high ambitions that upset the apple cart.

Low Bidder Didn't Get M16 Contract

WASHINGTON (AP) — Aroused congressional critics are prodding the Army to explain why an arms production company with a price below that of the successful bidders lost out in competition for contracts to supply the M16 rifle. Maremont Co. of Saco, Maine, failed to get one of two contracts awarded despite its offer to supply 240,000 M16 rifles for a ceiling price of $36 million.

The price quoted by Maremont, sole supplier of the Army's M16 machinegun, was $30 million below that of General Motors, which got one of the contracts, and $6 million less than that of Harrington & Richardson, Worcester, Mass., which got the other.

After Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., revealed Maremont's offer to the Senate, Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Senate preparedness subcommittee, said:

"I am not saying there has been any wrongdoing—we do not know—but the matter certainly requires an explanation."

"On the face of it, the awards do not look like a good move in terms of economy," said Rep. Richard H. Ichord, D-Mo., chairman of a special House subcommittee that investigated the M16 a year ago.

Ichord said he has advised Rep. L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, of the latest developments in the M16 case. It will be up to Rivers and the full committee to decide if the M16 investigation should be reopened.

The Army has had no comment, but industry sources say that Maremont and a fourth company, Cadillac Gage of Warren, Mich., were eliminated before price became a factor. The amount of Cadillac Gage's offer could not be determined.

Industry sources said each of the four firms submitted detailed technical outlines of how they intended to go about supplying initial and future orders. Army officials were reported to have told Maremont that while they had no major criticism of the firm or its M16 proposal, they had more confidence in GM and Harrington & Richardson.

Members of Congress from Maine have questioned this reasoning, contending that GM's arms production has been limited to manufacture of the M39 cannon for Air Force fighter planes.

Two-year contracts were awarded last April 12 to GM's Hydramatic Division, Ypsilanti, Mich., and to Harrington & Richardson.

Each firm would manufacture 240,000 rifles. GM would receive $56 million and Harrington & Richardson $42 million. The difference in price was attributed by the Pentagon to higher wage scales at the GM plant. The average manufacturing employee in the Detroit area earns $167.74 a week. In Worcester the average is $118.89.

The Army emphasized at the time that the prices announced were ceiling prices subject to negotiation downward after all costs have been determined. Estimates of the cost of tooling up for production of a new product are included in the prices.

Congressional curiosity was aroused after it was pointed out that under both contracts the cost per rifle would be much higher than what the Army has been paying Colt Industries of Hartford, Conn., until now sole supplier of the M16.

In the first year of the GM contract, the price averaged $316 per weapon. For Harrington & Richardson, the average is $250. Colt's prices on recent M16 contracts have averaged out to $104 a rifle—a price now being examined by General Accounting Office auditors to determine if it is excessive.

Long before the new contracts became a matter of controversy, congressional committees had criticized the Army's failure to act much earlier than it did to obtain manufacturing rights on the M16 from Colt—a necessary step toward contracting for additional sources of supply.

It took two years of negotiations and $4.5 million before the Army got the rights this year—seven years after a Defense Department study had described the M16 as the best shoulder weapon for use in the Vietnam war.

Shortly after the rights were obtained, the Defense Department announced that production of the M16 would be speeded up so that the South Vietnamese Army could be armed with the weapon.

Within a week, the contracts were awarded to General Motors and Harrington & Richardson. Commenting at that time on the prices to be paid, an Army spokesman said, "We're paying a premium to get the quantity and quality we want."

Mine Subsidence, Problem Here, No Longer Problem in England

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Mention mine subsidence in Pennsylvania's soft coal fields and you'd better duck before the storm of controversy erupts. But in Great Britain the problem is tolerated in the best of the stiff upper lip tradition.

Arguments over property damage from cracks opening up as the earth shifts and cracks over abandoned mines reached a climax two years ago in the Pennsylvania Legislature.

The state adopted tough laws which required coal producers to leave support pillars of coal in the mines at regular intervals.

Producers complained millions of dollars of the fuel would be wasted.

Britain—and the rest of Europe—has a different approach, according to Kenneth Wardell of Newcastle's K. Wardell and Partners, a firm of consulting mining engineers and geologists.

He told the American Mining Congress Wednesday the British system is more sensible, based on facts and figures.

"In all European countries," Wardell said, "new building in areas likely to be affected by ground subsidence is subject to some public regulation. This makes it obligatory on a contractor to minimize the risk of danger to his structure by adopting appropriate design criteria. Any additional building cost involved is usually borne by the contractor and only rather exceptionally by the mine operator."

Wardell said the whole city of Coventry, England, has an underground mine. An eight inch seam is being mined with no apparent damages or public relations problems, he said.

The coal expert said proper building design substantially reduces the risk of damage and the cost is rarely more than five per cent of total building cost.

At the same time, he said, it maintains flexibility in mine planning without being required to leave hundreds of tons underground.

The Pennsylvania industry has complained that coal companies will not be able to mine more than 50 per cent of the available coal due to legislative regulations.

group in Colombia that the pontiff's long-reported trip would be "impossible."

The Pope announced his trip to several thousand pilgrims in St. Peter's Basilica for his weekly general audience.

He said he would travel to Bogota "to attend the conclusion of the (Aug. 15-25) International Eucharistic Congress . . . and to open immediately afterward the general conference of the bishops of Latin America."

The bishops' conference is to take place in Medellin, a Colombian city 150 miles from Bogota.

The Pope's wording did not make clear whether he would travel to Medellin for the conference opening or whether the bishops, who would be in Bogota for the Eucharistic Congress, would hold the opening ceremony in the Colombian capital to save the Pope the trip.

Pope Paul noted that he had been invited to visit at least half a dozen other Latin American countries but said he could not do so.

The Pope is reported not fully recovered from his November prostate gland operation and seems to tire easily.

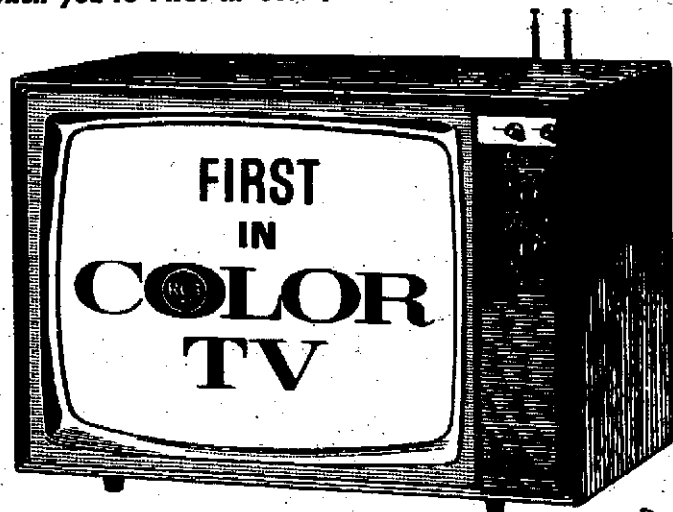

The Pope said the meetings in Colombia were of "exceptional importance" and added it seemed that "our humble, personal presence cannot be lacking."

The congress, 39th of its kind, emphasizes the dogma that Christ is really present in the ritual sacrifice of the Eucharist—communion—a tenet which Pope Paul underlined in a 1965 encyclical.

Nation's Unemployment Rate Matches 15-Year Low Mark

WASHINGTON (AP) — Only 3.5 per cent of the nation's workers were unemployed in April, matching a 15-year low, but the jobless rate was double in big city slums, the government said Wednesday.

The number of jobless workers in the nation dipped under 2.5 million for the first time since 1953. Total employment rose by 600,000 to 75.1 million, the Labor Department said.

But a new study showed the poorest ghettos in the 100 largest U.S. cities were islands of poverty and hardship surrounded by expanding jobs and income for most other Americans.

In the slum districts covering 11.5 million persons of working age, the jobless rate was 8.7 per cent for Negroes and 5.7 per cent for whites.

For those in the slums who were employed, jobs were more likely to be menial and low paying, the Bureau of Labor Statistics said.

"The concentration at the low end of the occupation scale was especially marked for Negroes in poverty neighborhoods," it said.

About half the slum residents covered in the survey were Negroes. The over-all unemployment rate for the neighborhoods was 7 per cent.

Arthur M. Ross, commissioner of the statistics bureau, said the new study was designed to spotlight the problems of poverty, low employment and hardship in the slums at a time when most Americans are enjoying the fruits of economic growth.

In the nation as a whole, Ross said, Negroes appeared to be benefitting from growing job opportunities at the same rate as white workers, but the national negro unemployment rate of 6.7 per cent remained more than double the white rate of 3.1 per cent.

Ross said that although Negroes were moving ahead at the same pace as other workers in gaining more and better jobs, it was a case of "running pretty fast to stand still."

The bureau noted rioting in many cities after the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. was partly responsible for cutting employment and hours of work in some industries.

There was a sharp drop of 35,000 in the number of workers in retail trade, usually a major area of job growth, Ross said this was probably due to the riots.

The loss was offset by the return to work of most of the strikers in the copper and glass container manufacturing industries.

Despite a slight drop in the length of the average work week, a pay boost of two cents an hour pushed average weekly earnings of some 45 million workers to a new high of $104.63, an increase of 20 cents a week.

The 3.5 per cent unemployment rate in April was down from 3.6 per cent in March.

On a national basis, the unemployment rate for men dipped to 2.1 per cent, lowest since 1953. The jobless rate for teenagers dropped from 13 per cent to 11.9 per cent. The unemployment rate for women remained at 3.7 per cent.

NBA Draft Continues, Rockets Pick Trapp

BY BEN OLAN
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The San Diego Rockets aren't going to lose 32 of 33 games during any stretch next season the way they did last year, General Manager — Coach Jack McMahon confidently predicts now that they have Elvin Hayes and John Q. Trapp.

John Q. Trapp, a 6-foot-7 forward from Nevada Southern picked as the first choice by the Rockets Tuesday when the National Basketball Association resumed and completed its annual draft of college players.

The draft's opening round was held five weeks ago when the Rockets chose Houston's Hayes and signed him to a long term contract. Baltimore grabbed Westley Unseld of Louisville, another All-American.

The draft resumed with the second round which, by prior agreement, was restricted to the bottom three clubs in each division, plus the circuit's newest teams, Milwaukee and Phoenix.

San Diego immediately trapped Trapp. Other selections in order were Art Harris of Stanford by Seattle, Loy Peterson of Oregon State by Chicago and Bob Quick of Xavier of Ohio by Baltimore. Cincinnati, which had the next choice, had traded it to Chicago and the Bulls selected Ron Dandorf of Illinois. It was completed when Detroit took Manny Leaks of Niagara, Phoenix chose Dick Cunningham of Murray State and Milwaukee tapped Eugene Moore of St. Louis University.

Bill Butler, captain of the St. Bonaventure University Basketball Team, was picked in the ninth round by the Boston Celtics. Butler was the only Senior on the Bonaventure team.

Later, the New York Knicks selected Don May of Dayton, the most valuable player in the last National Invitation Tournament. Milwaukee took Sam Williams of Iowa, another highly regarded player. Philadelphia drafted All-American Larry Miller of North Carolina, who has already signed with Los Angeles of the American Association.

Duke's Mike Lewis, who was signed by Indiana of the ABA, was chosen by Boston. Two members of The Associated Press' Little All-America were chosen, Henry Logan of Western Carolina by Seattle and Larry Newbold of LIU by Detroit. Bob Kaufman of Guilford, another Little All-American, had been drafted by Seattle in the first round.

In all, it was 12 rounds and 160 players. San Diego, which lost 32 of its 33 games in 1967-68, was active during each of the 12 rounds. McMahon, though, preferred to talk about the 6-9½ Hayes plus Trapp and Stuart Lantz of Nebraska, a 6-3 guard chosen by the Rockets in the third round.

"Hayes was the best college player in the country and he's going to be a dominant figure for us," McMahon said. "He's an excellent rebounder, can block shots and you must have someone like that to make the defense stronger. . . like Bill Russell does for Boston."

McMahon explained that his two highest scorers, John Block, 6-9, and Don Kojis, 6-5, were sidelined by injuries toward the end of last season. The club finished in the cellar of the six-team Western Division in its first league season.

The Rockets' boss added that he expected little difficulty in signing both Trapp and Lantz, although both were selected by Oakland in the ABA draft Sunday. "I'm sure they'd rather play in the NBA than in the other league," McMahon said confidently.

Hot Stove League To Meet

Hot Stove League officers and ward chairmen will make plans for the coming season at a meeting tonight in the YMCA. The meeting will start at 7:30 p.m. League schedules will be issued and umpires for the coming year will be signed.

Managers are needed, President Bob Pascuzzi said, in the Intermediate League, and in Wards 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5.

The league marks its 20th year of operation this season. All youths and adults wishing to umpire are asked to attend the meeting, Pascuzzi said. Prospective umpires who cannot attend are asked to call either Jim Bloom or Don Quiggle.

Wolman Fights Spectrum Plan

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — An attorney for Philadelphia Eagles' owner Jerry Wolman told a federal judge Wednesday reorganization of the Spectrum sports arena would jeopardize a plan devised to save Wolman's tottering financial empire.

"I have heard of miracles and I have heard of heart transplants, all to cure, but this is the first time I have heard that you must kill something to make it better," argued Morris Wexler, representing the Spectrum and its major stockholders, Wolman and his wife, Ann.

Bankruptcy for the Spectrum, he told U.S. District Judge A. Leon Higginbotham, would destroy "what has already been accomplished in the proceedings in Maryland federal courts, whereby a plan has been devised under which Wolman's assets would be put into good shape."

Wolman had banked on proceeds from the Spectrum to help pay off his debts, said to amount to $72 million.

Some creditors had a receiver appointed by a court to operate the Spectrum, Higginbotham, asked to overturn the lower court order, said he would hear arguments on petitions "and all issues" May 22 at 2 p.m.

NYP to Have Eight in '68

The New York-Pennsylvania League will operate with eight teams during 1968, it has been announced.

The two American League expansion teams will be represented. The Seattle Pilots will field a team in Newark, N.Y., while the Kansas City Royals are expected to be in Corning, N.Y.

The other six teams are: Jamestown, Batavia, Auburn, Geneva and Oneonta, in New York State, and Williamsport, Pa.

Rocky Socks 2 Homers, Cubs Beat Dodgers, 7-6

CHICAGO (AP) — Billy Williams and Ron Santo homered while Adolfo Phillips slammed a two-run double in leading the Chicago Cubs to a 7-6 victory over Los Angeles Wednesday.

Rocky Colavito accounted for five Dodger runs, slamming a two-run homer in the second inning and a three-run blast in the ninth.

Joe Niekro picked up his fifth triumph against one loss. He yielded only four hits in eight innings before needing help in the ninth.

Reliever Phil Regan, a former Dodger, retired the final batter with the tying run on third.

Williams and Santo connected in the first inning off Dodgers' starter Don Sutton, who now has an 0-8 career record against the Cubs.

A home run by rookie Luis Al-Clemente

Hurting

ATLANTA (AP) — Roberto Clemente of the Pittsburgh Pirates will return to Pittsburgh Thursday to have his right shoulder examined.

Clemente complained of a sore shoulder Friday in Philadelphia. He said he injured it in a fall at his home in Puerto Rico in February.

"It's obvious that Clemente is hurting," manager Larry Shepard said Wednesday night. "He is not swinging the way he can. We thought it best to have him examined in Pittsburgh."

Clemente, four-time National League hitting champ, is batting .221.

Yanks Win in Ninth, 2-1, Players Throw Punches

NEW YORK (AP) — A ninth inning double by Andy Kosco and a single by Jack Gibbs gave the New York Yankees a 2-1 victory over Cleveland Wednesday in a game marked by a near free-for-all fight.

Gene Michael, Yankee shortstop, and Tony Horton, Indians' first baseman, threw punches at each other around first base in the fifth inning and for a while it appeared both teams might join the melee.

After about 10 minutes peace was restored. Both Michael and Horton were ejected from the game and the Indians' starting pitcher, Steve Hargan, finished the inning but was then removed for a pinch hitter. The rumpus started when Horton apparently tagged Michael too hard on a pickoff attempt. Michael swung and the two exchanged blows. In the commotion, Horton nailed Michael with a right on the chin. Michael almost knocked down his coach, Whitely Ford, before he could be subdued.

Eddie Fisher, who entered the game in the ninth as the fourth Cleveland pitcher, was the loser. The winner was Joe Verbanic, who went into the game at the start of the eighth after starter Bill Monbouquette had been removed for a pinch hitter.

The Indians scored in the first inning on consecutive singles by Jose Cardenal and Chico Salomon and two infield outs. Cardenal came home when Monbouquette threw to first base on a tap by Leon Wagner.

The Yankees leveled the score in the seventh. After Tom Tresh had beaten out an infield tap and Gibbs had sacrificed him to second, Bobby Cox lined a double past Wagner in right field, scoring Tresh.

Warren Golfers Lose to Bemus

Warren Dragon golfers lost to Maple Grove High School, 13 to 6, in a 12-hole golf match played at Bemus Point Wednesday.

It was the Dragons warm-up for the Section II match in Cambridge Springs Friday. Warren will be represented in the sectionals by Matt Voigt, Doug Swanson, Larry Roth, Pat Murphy and Jon Scalise.

Doug Swanson was medalist in the Bemus match with a 39-15-52 score. His opponent, Barry Eckwall, had 42-17-59, to give Warren three points. Other scores were:

Gambling Investigation Touches Pro Football

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal grand jury opened a gambling investigation Monday that has touched the edges of pro football.

Among the total of 53 persons under subpoena to testify are Fran O'Brien, a veteran tackle for the Pittsburgh Steelers, and Ralph Guglielmi, former quarterback for the Washington Redskins.

Neither was called in the opening session of the investigation, expected to continue at least three days.

Court sources have indicated the witnesses have been called merely to give information, and there is no hint of any involvement with National Football League play. The probe grew out of two New Year's Day raids on alleged football pools involving college bowl games.

The grand jury was formally empaneled Tuesday to investigate the "alleged use of interstate facilities to promote, carry on and conduct alleged illegal gambling activities . . . between Virginia and the District of Columbia."

FISHING KNOWHOW

In my Erie column last week I stressed the value of fishing knowhow. I tried to point out to the average reader that regardless of the fact that he may own a thousand dollars worth of tackle it didn't mean a thing if he lacked a proper background in the fundamentals of the game. And I went on to say that as I travel around the streams, observing the fishermen, it is a lack of knowledge about the fundamentals that is the most noticeable trait of the unsuccessful rooster.

For all in all, so long as a fisherman insists on flaunting the rules that have been established by the fishes themselves, there is little reason for him to think that he should enjoy the same luck as the fisherman who is willing to play the game on their terms. Every species of fish has its own idiosyncrasies and the fisherman who has any intention of bringing them to net had better know these quirks and play up to them.

This knowledge can be acquired. Not too often from the clerk in the tackle store, who is often far more informed on what is selling best than how the most fish are being caught, but from persons with extensive experience and from books. Personally, I have gained a lot from both sources, but if I am to make a recommendation for the average angler I will not hesitate to give the books the top rating.

But then, there are all kinds of fishing books. Some are highly specialized, and in a few the author starts in where he should have been finishing up on his subject. So one has to be careful in selecting his literature, especially if his interest is in getting down to the basics with the least amount of foolishness thrown in.

First, I think it is important to know that the author is a qualified fisherman and has had enough experience to let him know what he is talking about. Then, it should be determined that he isn't a crank on some particular aspect of the sport so that he leads the reader down the garden path in a single direction. And there are certainly enough fishing books authored by writers who can measure up to these qualifications that the search for an informative book of this sort doesn't have to be too demanding.

However, when it comes to the fundamentals of fishing and a detailed account of "do's" and "don'ts" I have a favorite. Not because I personally have learned so much from it, its publication was about fifty years too late to help me too much, but because I know the author to be an outstanding fisherman, and because it stresses the fundamental principles more than any other book I know. This book is "ABC's of Fresh Water Fishing" by John Crowe.

And John didn't get his fishing experience by travelling to some far off and seldom fished fisherman's paradise. He has done most of his fishing right in the northwestern part of Pennsylvania on the same streams most of us are fishing today. He has written some excellent material on Caldwell Creek, the Brokenstraw and the Allegheny River, to name only a few.

The thing that really hooked me with the Crowe book was the first paragraph. The first thing in the first chapter, "Fishing for Trout," John said, "Successful approach is the first consideration in catching trout. If you scare them, you won't catch them. Fine tackle, casting skill, choice bait, beautifully tied flies—no matter what else you have in your favor, without proper approach you won't do much, especially with big trout."

This was common sense. Just a little item, but an item I had taken me several years to learn the value of. And an item I never did come to appreciate until I started fishing with a half-breed Indian who was an "approach" expert, and a fabulous fisherman. Tom knew that proper approach was the keystone of successful trout fishing, and he never missed an opportunity to impress me with the fact.

Then too, I was just as much impressed throughout the Crowe book with the fine coverage John gave the other species of fresh water game fish—always with the basics right up front. His hints on bass, pike, walleyes, and muskies would improve anyone's fishing abilities.

But it so happens that Putnam's Book Store on the East Side has the Crowe book in stock. The best thing to do would be to drop in and have a look at it. This will let you decide if it's your cup of tea or not.

Strange. Most car prices have gone up. Except on Dodge Charger. The Manufacturer's Suggested Retail Price on the standard 1968 Dodge Charger with V8 is $88 less than that on the 1967 Charger (exclusive of optional whitewalls and chrome road wheels shown above). But then Charger has a way of being different. It's styled mean and clean. And quietly thundering under the hood is a spirited 318-cubic-inch V8.

Introduced to Kiwanis members by Clyde Loomis, left, program chairman, Miller discussed the Soap Box Derby program and presented a film program dealing with building of a soap box racer and the competition held at Akron, Ohio, last year.

Teacher Talks Despondent Man Down from Bridge

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A mountain-climbing school teacher took time out during his lunchbreak Wednesday to scale a downtown Pittsburgh bridge and talk a despondent man down from his dizzy perch. Ivan Jirak said he volunteered to climb the superstructure of the abandoned Point Bridge because he figured the man needed help. "They only need to talk to somebody," Jirak said. The man was identified as

Robbery Said Motive For Slayings

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Robbery appeared to be the motive Wednesday for the slaying of a mother of three, a meat-market operator and a retired farmer in Western New York. In each case, since the findings of the bodies Tuesday and Wednesday, police said, money apparently was taken. In Rochester, a plant employee parked his automobile in a lot, looked around and discovered the nearly nude body of Mrs. Raymond H. F. 39. A medical examiner said she died of a skull fracture and might have been raped. In Evans, a community south of Buffalo, two policemen found the front door of a meat market open. They went inside and discovered the body of Raymond J. Hogan, 48, in a walk-in refrigerator. He had been shot in the head, they said. At nearby Elma, Joseph Fesel, 70, was found dead Tuesday in the home he shared with his sister, Miss Anna Fesel, 78. He had been beaten to death, deputy sheriffs said, by the same man who beat his sister.

Pennsylvania Happenings

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — If you want to be creative, inventive, original — you've simply must let your mind relax. And that does it. Says who? Says Dr. Kenneth H. Gordon Jr., associate professor of psychiatry at Temple University. "When a person tries to force creative work the result is usually a copy of something he did before or it reads like an Army manual," Dr. Gordon reports. "But give the mind a chance to relax and it performs tasks as yet undreamed of by computers. In fact, we have barely scratched the surface of man's abilities, perception and potential." Dr. Gordon acknowledges that creativity seems to result from a driven inner desire. "Artists feel a need to create what they perceive," he insists. "And they feel a certain sense of relief or pleasure when they have accomplished it." But he's just as certain that the best creations result when the mind isn't forced, when it has been allowed to rest.

NEITHER RAIN, NOR SNOW, ETC.: Gertrude Mayers Bloom, a Philadelphia fashion coordinator, recently wrote an Italian hotel for a reservation in a planned European tour. She did get confirmation from Gritti Palace in Venice. But instead of a street address, the sender copied off her telephone number. It reached her without trouble — after the post office phoned.

Maple syrup production is in full swing in the Titusville area. And still in use is the old method of boiling the sap in big batches out-of-doors over a wood fire.

His Motto is "Be Prepared": Police Commissioner Frank L. Rizzo of Philadelphia doesn't want trouble on the streets of Pennsylvania's biggest city. But should it come this spring or summer, he wants his 7,000 cops protected. The commissioner recently ordered 6,000 plastic face masks for riot helmets, and 25 armored vests that can withstand a rifle bullet at 35 feet.

Jerry Weinstein, editor of the Centre Daily Times, says a Centre County resident has found one of the best ways to relieve tensions, and relax a bit, is to go fly a kite. But Weinstein says there's only one drawback, quoting the man, "You have to sneak away to some isolated spot for fear someone will think you're cracking up."

Special Legislation Helps Servicemen Solve $ Problems

(c) N.Y. Times News Service NEW YORK — Based on past experience, the Armed Forces expect enlistments and the draft to continue bringing in new men at the rate of about a half million a year despite the promise of peace talks in Paris. Next Monday alone, about 24,000 men in the National Guard or Army Reserve will report for active duty.

As a result, many face new financial problems and a rash of bills they can't meet on military pay. They owe money for cars, homes, furniture and personal loans or have leases on apartments they no longer can afford.

Anyone in this predicament should lose no time in familiarizing himself with the rights of servicemen and their families under the Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act. (Despite the name, the law covers ALL service-men.)

Let's assume, for instance, that you bought a car, made a down payment and paid a few installments. Then you're ordered to active duty. If you want to keep the car, the first thing to do is to notify your lender, preferably by registered mail, telling him the details. Try to work out a new payment schedule based on your new circumstances.

Banks and other lending institutions normally try to reach a new agreement acceptable to all. But if one cannot be reached, one's car cannot be taken away without a court order. And, if such a case should go to court, a judge has broad powers to resolve the suit. He could reduce a payment schedule to suit a serviceman's new circumstances, or might order the car repossessed.

The judge tries to be equitable to both parties. If you must go to court, it may be wise to retain legal counsel, either your own lawyer, whom you would have to pay, or a representative of the Legal Aid Society if such service is available. The court can appoint counsel when considered necessary or one could call upon the American Legion, the Red Cross or other service organizations in various sections of the U.S.

If you're overseas or otherwise unavailable to defend your suit in person, the court in most cases would postpone the litigation until you could appear in court. The procedure is basically the same in most financial problems; you notify your creditor you're going into the service, try to work out a solution and then, if you have to go to court, get legal counsel.

Apartment problems can be "sticky" but should cause no difficulty if handled properly.

If you have a lease and perhaps the landlord has your deposit, you can under the law terminate the lease by giving a full 30-day notice in writing. If, for instance, you have to report for duty by the end of June, you must give notice by the end of May. If you terminate in the middle of a month, you owe rent for the remainder of that month.

The landlord must return your deposit if you have complied with the law but is entitled under the law to collect for any legitimate damages to his property.

One point about loans: If you are now paying more than six per cent interest you may, after entering service, start paying only that amount but you must notify your creditors and cite the Civil Relief Act as your authority. Lenders of course can seek court relief.

In income tax, servicemen must pay along with everyone else, but enlisted men pay no taxes on money earned in combat zones and officers in combat zones pay no taxes on the first $500 a month. Taxes may also be put off until up to six months after getting out of service but request must be made in writing and tax returns filed.

If you have insurance, you may keep it current if it's at least 180 days old by asking the Veterans Administration to guarantee payment of premiums up to $10,000 of coverage. When you return to civilian life you have two years to get payments straightened out.

A booklet entitled "Information About the Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act" is available free from the Secretary of the Air Force, Room 4C 922, Pentagon, Washington, D.C. Another prepared by the Amvets, 1710 R.I. Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C., is also available free.

Post High School Education Available to Deserving Pupils

Post-high school education is available to most deserving students regardless of family income. This was the theme of the presentation to Erie 9th, 10th, and 11th grade students given by Vincent P. Trotta, financial aid officer, and Harold O. Umbarger, director of admissions, both of Edinboro State College. Trotta and Umbarger addressed students at the Tech Memorial, Roosevelt, Gridley, East and Strong Vincent Schools.

The purpose of the city-wide program was to announce the Edinboro State College Educational Opportunity Grant Conditional Commitment Program. The Educational Opportunity Grant (EOG) Program is a federal program designed to assist economically disadvantaged students.

During each year in college, students may receive an EOG ranging from $200 to $800, depending upon the amount determined as necessary. The EOG is usually matched by an equal amount of funds comprised of a loan and employment.

Edinboro State College has the authority to conditionally commit EOG's to students enrolled in Grade 11 or below from low-income families. Such students must show evidence of academic and creative promise, as well as show exceptional financial need. The EOG financial aid package will be effective at the time the student is enrolled as a freshman at Edinboro.

Trotta pointed out that students at Edinboro have received approximately $1,500,000 in financial aid during the current academic year. His anticipated that this amount will increase to $2,000,000 next year. This amount of financial aid available, coupled with the low cost of attending Edinboro State College, exemplifies the theme of the program.

Local Nurses To Attend Meet

Registered nurses from this area of Pennsylvania will attend the 46th Convention of the American Nurses' Association, May 13-17, in Dallas, Texas. The ANA meets biennially to consider issues of importance to the profession and to provide an opportunity for nurses to attend clinical and general program sessions.

Official delegates from Pennsylvania will act on issues affecting nursing and elect national officers and directors for the next two years.

Members from the Pennsylvania Nurses Association who will be attending from this area are: Nan Schue, director of in-service education, Warren State Hospital; Mrs. Kathleen Mahaffy, psychiatric nursing instructor, Warren State Hospital.

Ten thousand registered nurses from ANA's 54 constituent associations, guests from other countries, and representatives of allied health fields are expected to attend the week-long convention and clinical sessions.

There are more than 900 languages used in Asia.

Opinion-Spouting Proff Fascinates Students, Stirs Up Administration

By DAN SELLARD
Eugene Register-Guard
Written for The Associated Press

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — When Art Pearl speaks, people listen. Pearl is a stocky, cigar-chewing University of Oregon education professor with opinions on just about everything and the kind of approach that gets his opinions heard.

"First you've got to get their attention," he explains. "A guy like me has to compete to get people to listen to him these days. . . compete with radio, television, newspapers, magazines and other speakers."

Some sample Pearl attention-getters:

—On education: "Just about 90 per cent of the kids in Oregon are being shortchanged because teachers are doing a lousy job."

—On the war on poverty: "We ought to create jobs first, then get them (the poor) an education."

—On the war in Vietnam: "When the President tells us we can have guns and butter both, he lies."

—On student drug use: "The deans of students, more than anybody else, promote drug use on campus by limiting other outlets for students."

This kind of approach has had Pearl embroiled in controversy ever since he hit the U of O campus from Howard University in 1965. In no time after he got here he was raising the hackles on the backs of many educators' necks.

In speech after speech he has derided educators for failing to educate. Some educators, he said, "put youngsters on a shelf for 20 years. When they come down, they're not prepared to enter the civilization waiting for them."

He is critical of teachers, administrators, school boards and schools of education. And the fact that he teaches in one of the latter doesn't faze his attack.

"We have no right to victimize kids because teachers can't teach," he says. "Schools of education do not challenge their students. We don't really have enough interesting, challenging courses in our schools."

Among students at the U of O School of Education there seems no question about whether Art Pearl's courses are interesting or challenging. Each one he teaches is jammed.

"A perfect course would be Art Pearl in the morning, Art Pearl in the afternoon, and Art Pearl in the evening," said one student. "There'd never be a dull moment."

But there's some disagreement among his colleagues on Pearl's approach to matters educational.

Many regard him as a bona fide innovator, one who thinks up new projects, new ways to teach. These people say Pearl's criticisms are not the shoot-from-the-hip variety, but well-prepared and documented.

But a fellow U of O Education School faculty member thinks Pearl "sometimes goes too far." "He appears to love headlines more than respect. He ought to do more thinking about the effect of his words as they go into newspapers," Pearl is 44, holds a Ph.D. from the University of California. He was born in New York.

In his youth Pearl did some semi-pro boxing, but quit. His reasons, "I didn't like getting hit."

He gets hit plenty in his present role, but he seems to enjoy it. Take the time when Pearl journeyed to California and made some of his usual give-'em-Hell speeches.

An enraged newspaper columnist wrote:

"Any man who poses as an educator and who says the schools are the most destructive and humiliating agency of our times is as wildly wrong and as essentially self-stultifying as a minister of the gospel who prostitutes his profession by bellowing that God is dead."

Pearl is in demand all over the country. He packs in about 50 hours of teaching and counseling at the U of O during the first four days of each week and then takes off for a speaking engagement or school consultant job.

The work may be helping a school district establish a curriculum, helping plug for advancement of the war on poverty, or speaking about professionalism in teaching.

Of teachers, Pearl says, "Too many teachers are not real people to students; they are boring, they fail to challenge. Today a teacher must be hip — he must establish a rapport with the student quickly, else he'll lose all contact and the student will look at him as just another double-talking adult."

Pearl was critical of the Eugene School Board for firing controversial teacher Ronald Kunkle.

"Our schools are a haven for unexciting females, and this kind of thing will prevent exciting, stimulating people from going into teaching, or from teaching well if they do," he said.

At the same time, Pearl added, "Academic freedom calls for accountability. A teacher must be able to justify what he's doing to parents, other teachers, his students, his superiors."

Said a friend of Pearl's attacks on the status quo:

"He can make a school board member or an administrator mad as Hell, but that same guy will be quoting Pearl the next day as if he'd read it from the Bible."

Sen. Joseph Clark to Dedicate Three Flags in Crescent Park May 30

The historic flags of the United States, France and England which will be flown in Crescent Park following ceremonies on May 30 will be dedicated by U. S. Senator Joseph S. Clark, according to William F. Clinger Jr., chairman of the event. Senator Clark accepted the invitation to be the principal speaker at the ceremony in a letter received Tuesday by the Kinzua Dam Vacation Bureau which is sponsoring the project in cooperation with the Warren County Historical Society.

The committee has also invited representatives of the governments of France and England to visit Warren for the dedication scheduled for 3 o'clock on Memorial Day, May 30.

Three flag poles, seventy feet high, are under construction now and they will fly giant flags, size 12 feet by 18 feet, day and night for a six month period of each year. It is planned to have the installation illuminated during the nighttime.

They will be seen by residents and travelers from the Pennsylvania Avenue side of the Allegheny River in downtown Warren.

TO BE HERE MEMORIAL DAY

Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., will be the principal speaker here Memorial Day when the historic three flags to be erected in Crescent Park by the Kinzua Dam Vacation Bureau and Warren County Historical Society are dedicated.

Teen-Ager Indicted for Murder

MERCER, Pa. (AP)—A teenage boy charged with stabbing his mother was indicted Wednesday on charges of murder, voluntary manslaughter and involuntary manslaughter. The indictments were returned against James W. Hanna, 16, of Leesburg. He is charged with killing his mother, Ruth, Aug. 9, 1967.

A Mercer County grand jury indicted Hanna after the district attorney resubmitted the case to the panel. Tuesday, it passed over the murder and voluntary manslaughter charges and indicted Hanna on a charge of involuntary manslaughter.

Leaders of the vacation bureau and the historical society believe that the flags will serve to remind citizens of the romantic early history of Warren County and their beautiful setting in the park will be of interest to visitors in the area.

The French flag, Fleur-de-lis, would have been the first to fly over the county when Celeron de Blainville headed an expedition in 1749 which traveled down the Conewango Creek to its mouth at the Allegheny River.

The King's Colors or "Colonial Jack" of England is thought to have flown over a trading post at the Buckalouns near Irvine. That same place may have been the first, also, to fly the Stars and Stripes when Colonel Daniel Broadhead made his expedition up from Fort Pitt to quell the Tory-inspired uprisings in the area.

Other members of the Three Flags dedication committee include T. K. Stratton, Jeremy Fisher, Vic Miller, Gilbert Reiser, Harold Johnson, Robert Dilks, Ernest Miller, Leroy Schneek, Frank Fago and Charles Tranter.

Senator Clark, a former Mayor of Philadelphia, was elected to the U.S. Senate in 1956 and re-elected in 1962. He was graduated magna cum laude from Harvard University, where he was also a member of Phi Beta Kappa. At the University of Pennsylvania he served as editor of the Law Review and received his law degree in 1926. In the Senate, he serves on the Foreign Relations, Rules and Administration, and Labor and Public Welfare committees. During World War II Senator Clark served as Chief of Staff of the Eastern Air Command, China-Burma-India Theater of War.

Mrs. Clark will accompany the senator to Warren to take part in the Three Flags program.

Janitor Forced

To Open Bank Doors

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A bank was robbed early Wednesday morning when a gunman forced a janitor to open the bank's doors.

The bandit escaped in a waiting car with the contents of a cash drawer from the Pittsburgh National Bank's Wilkesburg branch.

HARRISBURG (AP) — An historic bill that would authorize state financial aid to private and parochial schools was passed by the House Wednesday over the opposition of the Republican leadership and in the face of a possible gubernatorial veto.

The roll call was 105-80, as proponents from both sides of the aisle joined to muster a constitutional majority with three votes to spare. The measure was sent to the Senate where it faces new administration attempts at amendment.

The bill, the first of its kind to be approved by either chamber, was strongly backed by the Pennsylvania Catholic Conference. An estimated 600,000 Catholic school children would be the major beneficiaries of the legislation.

Most Protestant and public education groups opposed the measure either on grounds that it was unconstitutional or that there was not enough money to finance adequately the state's public schools to divert funds to the nonpublic schools.

The legislation would create a State Nonpublic School Authority, administered by a nine-member board, which would dispense grants to eligible schools under a "purchase of service" concept. The schools would be compensated on the basis of instruction offered in four subjects — mathematics, modern languages, physical science, and physical education.

Fifteen per cent of the present cigarette tax would be designated as the source of revenue. At the current rate, that would net the nonpublic schools about $27 million annually.

There was never any doubt that the bill would be passed after supporters had successfully defeated administration amendments offered in the House Tuesday. There was a strong indication from Gov. Shafer that the same amendments would be tried in the Senate.

In a statement released even as the House roll call was being taken, Shafer said he would "be happy to sign" the bill if amended. The governor did not say what he would do if his amendments were not inserted, but the implication was that he would veto it.

House Passes School Aid Bill; Revenue from Cigarette Tax

The Shafer amendments would eliminate the authority and put the Department of Public Instruction in charge of dispensing the funds. Furthermore, instead of being financed by $37 million from the cigarette tax, the program would receive its funds from thoroughbred horse racing.

The administration has estimated that the state will receive $8.3 million from thoroughbred racing in the coming fiscal year, but proponents of nonpublic school aid disputed the figure. They noted that the Senate has yet to confirm a racing commission under the recently enacted thoroughbred law.

House Republican Leader Lee A. Donaldson, R-Allegheny, spearheaded opposition to the bill, contending that the money to finance it was not available. He noted that the legislature is hard put at present to find $53 million to give the public school teachers a salary increase.

"I recognize the great contributions the nonpublic schools have made to the children of Pennsylvania and I sympathize with their financial problems," Donaldson said. "However, I can't see where the money is available within the framework of the budget."

Rep. Martin P. Mullen, D-Philadelphia, argued that the money was available, although he admitted some of the proposed spending advocated by the governor might have to be cut. He said he was ready to submit cuts totaling $67 million. Mullen is a leading Catholic layman and long one of the main advocates of state help for nonpublic schools.

Noting that the public schools receive over a billion dollars annually from the state, Mullen said:

"Is it too much to ask the General Assembly to appropriate the small sum of $27 million to the 600,000 children attending nonpublic schools? I say it is not."

Mullen said he expected the bill would have an uphill fight in the Senate, as it had in the House. The issue of nonpublic school aid permeated the entire House session last year, but the administration's tax program was given precedent by the GOP leadership.

If finally enacted into law, with or without the governor's amendments, the bill faces a certain court test, as did the 1965 law authorizing private and parochial school children to ride public school buses. The constitutionality of the school bus act was upheld.

In other legislative developments:

Public schools — Public school officials from Philadelphia and Pittsburgh met with legislative leaders of both parties and warned that their schools would not be able to reopen in September without an additional $42 million.

Port — The House defeated by a vote of 84-53 a bill that would have authorized the Delaware River Port Authority to finance construction of cargo facilities in Chester, Pa., and Camden, N. J., at a cost of $51 million. Interest — A joint House-Senate conference committee reached agreement on a bill that would permit banks to charge a 1 per cent premium on mortgage loans over and above the maximum interest rate in Pennsylvania of 6 per cent.

Big City Schools Clamor For $42 Million Aid

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Philadelphia and Pittsburgh school districts advised the General Assembly Wednesday that they were threatened with teacher shortages if an additional $42 million was not forthcoming for the new school year.

Officials of the state's two largest metropolitan centers said the situation was so serious that public schools in both cities may be unable to reopen in September unless the extra money was provided.

Much of the district's financial problems centered on teacher salaries, they said, but also warned that both systems were confronted with a large influx of pupils from nonpublic schools to add to their financial woes.

Mark Shedd, Philadelphia Superintendent of Schools, told a private meeting of legislative leaders that the city must increase its school budget of $208 million by $34 million. Shedd looked to the state to provide a substantial portion of that increase.

Dr. Sidney P. Marland, Shedd's Pittsburgh counterpart, said his district required $8 million above its current operating budget of $54 million to function properly next year. Marland said all of the additional money would have to come from the state.

Shedd explained that more than half the $34 million Philadelphia is seeking would go for higher teacher salaries.

He said the city must have 1,000 teachers to instruct its 250,000 school children and only 200-to-300 have been recruited for next year.

The city pays its teachers a starting salary of $5,900, but the teachers union is demanding a $9,000 minimum in its new contract negotiations, he added. In Pittsburgh, Marland said the city had signed up less than 100 of the 700 teachers it requires to staff its schools, "with very few people interested in coming on."

The city pays its teachers a starting salary of $5,900, but the teachers union is demanding a $9,000 minimum in its new contract negotiations, he added. In Pittsburgh, Marland said the city had signed up less than 100 of the 700 teachers it requires to staff its schools, "with very few people interested in coming on."

Richard Dilworth, a two-time unsuccessful Democratic candidate for governor, a former mayor of Philadelphia and now president of the city's Board of Education, warned:

"If the money doesn't come, the system isn't going to open because the teachers aren't going to teach."

To compound the picture, both Marland and Shedd warned of the migration into the public schools of parochial school pupils.

"We have an increasing flow of youngsters from parochial schools to the public schools," Marland said. "We just don't have the space for them."

Shedd estimated that 7,500 nonpublic school students would enter the city's public school system next year.

Marland and Dilworth, however, seemed to take opposing views on the question of state aid for nonpublic schools. A $27 million bill for such assistance passed the House shortly after their meeting with the legislators.

Pro's and Con's Given On the Raystown Dam

WASHINGTON (AP)—A $4.5 million item in President Johnson's budget for the proposed Raystown dam and reservoir in central Pennsylvania was opposed and supported before a House Appropriations Subcommittee Wednesday.

Support came from three members of the state's congressional delegation and a 60-member group from the area. Opposition forces were led by Gene Henry of Martinsburg. He estimated his group numbered about 50.

Henry said he objected to the project on the ground it would be mainly for recreation rather than for flood control.

Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., who sided with the proponents as did Sen. Joseph D. Clark, D-Pa., and Rep. J. Irving Whalley, R-Pa., said the project offered the promise of a better life "for the people in this large area of Pennsylvania's Appalachian region."

Samuel A. Reimert, of Huntingdon, said the dam is uneconomical and impracticable and would be "a complete waste of the taxpayer's money at a time when our nation is practically bankrupt and we are conducting a costly Vietnam war."

Reimert said he represents the thinking of thousands of south central Pennsylvania taxpayers "who want common sense in the spending of the taxpayer's dollar."

Scott said Pennsylvania's Department of Forests and Waters considers the proposed dam an integral part of the flood control plan for the Juniata and Lower Susquehanna Rivers. He also said the area's recreational potential would be enhanced by the dam and the key to its economic progress.

Reimert said the dam would flood the existing recreation area and destroy 1,600 homes and farms.

C. J. Hopkins, Huntingdon, said "the only people in the area who really need flood control are the 1,600 property owners who will be flooded if this wasteful project is ever completed."

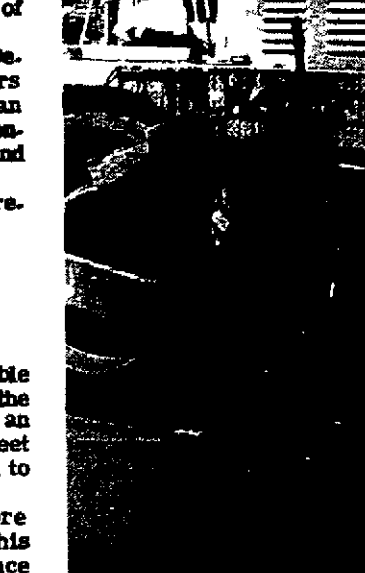

Clark said the dam would "eliminate 73 per cent of the potential flood danger along the Juniata and 11 per cent on the lower Susquehanna."

"The Raystown reservoir will also meet one of the pernicious pollution problems in Pennsylvania — the problem of acid mine drainage."

The study was made by a committee headed by Stuart T. Saunders, board chairman of the Penn Central Co.

Lewis Van Dusen, chancellor of the Philadelphia Bar Association, said a new courthouse "is dreadfully needed by the community."

The proposed building will consolidate all of the city's and county's criminal and civil courtrooms and the 28 present magistrate courts. It is geared to provide for the judicial needs of Pennsylvania's largest city through 1990.

RESURFACING PROGRESSES

Workmen resurfacing Pennsylvania ave. moved into the downtown section of Warren Wednesday with their blacktopping operation. Traffic was restricted from Market st. to Hickory st. Wednesday's operations completed the Pennsylvania ave. project; however, starting today, blacktopping operations will be in progress along Fourth ave. According to borough police, Fourth ave. will be blocked off from Laurel st. to Market st. during the operation. (Photo by Mansfield)

Contracts Let For Off-Shore Drilling

HARRISBURG (AP) — The State Forests and Waters Department has awarded contracts totaling approximately $120,000 for off-shore drilling of gas and oil in Lake Erie, it was disclosed Wednesday.

The contracts went to: Pan American Petroleum Corp. of Fort Worth, Tex., $117,789, for drilling rights to 19,629 acres; and Ranger Oil Co., $10,242 for 4,877 acres.

Forests and Waters Secretary Maurice K. Goddard said it was hoped that drilling could begin this summer after the two firms received the necessary permits from appropriate state agencies.

The contracts entitle the two firms to drill the sites for one year. Beyond that, the companies will have to pay the state annually a dollar for each acre they continue to drill, plus a royalty on any gas or oil withdrawn from the blocks.

The City of Erie had sought an injunction to prevent the state from awarding contracts on the ground that the drilling would prove harmful to its water supply. The request was denied, however, by Commonwealth Court.

The state had offered 376,000 acres in Lake Erie for drilling, but received bids on only the 24,500 acres covered in the contracts.

New Industry to be Located In Former S-W Titusville Bldg.

TITUSVILLE — Two Warren men and one from Elmira, N. Y., plan to locate a new industry in the former Struthers Wells building in Titusville which is now owned by Noel Proulx.

Agreement has been reached between the executive board of the Titusville Industrial Fund and the three principals of the new company, George Armitage and John Savko of Warren and Lawrence Hayes of Elmira.

The new company is Ash Aluminum Products Co., and with some equipment already moved in, it is hoped to be into production next week. Armitage said the Ash company will produce "collapsible car-top campers." He said the camper units open up to an 8-foot by 12-foot space, 6 feet high and can be folded down to a 14-inch high package.

According to Armitage, more details of the product and his company will be available once the move to Titusville is completed and production starts. He said later this summer he plans to relocate a tool and die-making company from Warren and Titusville. He stated this small industry will also be located in the Proulx building. The firm, Centerline Tool and Die, is run by Armitage and Savko.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Last week I slipped in the shower and broke my shoulder. It was 10:00 p.m. and my husband, Roy, was playing poker at the Elks Club. When I telephoned him he said, "Gee, that's a shame. Take a taxi to the hospital. I am $60 ahead now and I'd better stay in the game and make the hospital bill." He suggested I call my mother if I wanted "company."

Last summer when my brother cut his hand on a beer bottle, Roy fainted. I had to bind up my brother's hand and drive him to the doctor's office. When our children came down with poison ivy (they weren't very sick but they looked a mess), Roy suddenly remembered a fishing date and left town. He didn't take me to the hospital when the children were born. With our first boy, he had what the doctor called sympathetic labor pains and was in worse shape than I was. When the second boy was born, he was out of town—60 miles away—with car trouble.

There must be a reason for this. What is it? — WIFE OF A LITTLE BOY

DEAR WIFE: Your answer appears in your signature. Roy is too immature to face unpleasantness or discomfort, so he takes a duck whenever he sees something coming. In addition to being immature, Roy is also inconsiderate, and that's a mighty unattractive combination. Lots of luck.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When people write and ask for advice you are supposed to help them, not insult them. Your answer to Uppacric, the secretary who didn't know what to do about her fresh boss with Roman hands, was no help. You said, "Kwiterkiddin. A 23-year-old girl knows how to put an eight-handed idiot in his place . . . if she really wants to, that is."

Did it ever occur to you that some girls have to work for a living? They can't take a chance on offending the boss and losing their job — and maybe getting blacklisted — if he is a louse. Before you answered that letter you should have talked to some honest-to-goodness working girls. — ONE MYSELF

DEAR ONE: I did talk to some honest-to-goodness secretaries. Mine.

The girls agreed unanimously that, almost without exception, the secretary who has trouble keeping her boss in line has asked for it. Also, no secretary gets pawed more than once unless she enjoys it. Another point brought out by my secretaries was that every city has a few executives who are part-time sex maniacs and no decent girl would work for them. Good jobs are easier to find these days than good secretaries.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I know you don't believe in Lonely Hearts Clubs and neither do I, but you could do a lot of good in this world, Ann, if you would match up some of the fine people who yearn for companionship.

You could insist that the applicants send references from a clergyman, a physician and a bank. You might even do personal interviewing in your home to make sure these people are respectable. You could match people of the same age group, religion, educational and financial backgrounds. Just think of the lives you could change. Please say yes, Ann. — THE SHY ONE

DEAR SHY: I could change lives all right — especially MINE. All I need is a matchmaking operation, and in my own home yet.

Playing cupid can be dangerous. I want no part of it. Everybody should find his own mate. Then he can either thank himself or kick himself.

What is French kissing? Is it wrong? Who should set the necking limits — the boy or the girl? Can a shotgun wedding succeed? Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Teen-age Sex — Ten Ways To Cool It." Send 50 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Daughters of American Colonists Entertain Regent

Kanawha Chapter Daughters of the American Colonists entertained at their honored guest and speaker, Mrs. Herald Best of Oil City, State Regent of the organization, at a luncheon meeting held in the Jackson Valley Country Club recently.

The regent of the local group, Mrs. Stephen Saylor, made an announcement of the appointment of Mrs. Lester Akeley as registrar to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mrs. Mabel Granquist.

Mrs. Saylor also announced the presentation of books entitled "The First Frontier Life in Colonial America" by John C. Miller, as the Kanawha Chapter's American History Award to Warren Area High School.

Mrs. Best in her talk described the National President's project of placing a marker commemorating the first Thanksgiving day in America. Authorized by charter, it will be placed at Berkeley Hundred Plantation in Virginia. Mrs. Best also related the progress being made in the publishing of the History of DAC in Pennsylvania, a project of the State administration. She urged all chapters to support both projects.

Mrs. Saylor and Mrs. Bertam Messerly, the DAC State Historian, attended the executive board meeting of the state society on Monday. It was held at the Penn-Harris Motor Inn in Harrisburg.

Mary Cashman, Henry J. Dahl Pledge Vows At Nuptial Mass

Wedding vows were pledged by Mary Cashman and Henry J. Dahl Jr. on Saturday, May 4, at a 10:30 a.m. Nuptial Mass in St. Joseph Church. The pastor of the church, the Rev. Alfred Bauer, read the double ring rites in the presence of one hundred wedding guests. Tim and Tom Gay, cousins of the bride, served as Altar Boys.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William M. Cashman of Warren, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Dahl of Warren.

Wedding music was provided at the organ by Mrs. Thomas Donnelly. Altar decorations included arrangements of pom-pom daisies, white gladioli and yellow snapdragons in spray arrangements at either side of the altar.

Escorted on the arm of her father, the bride appeared in a gown of white tulle, the floor length bridal dress having a portrait neckline; Alencon lace and seed pearls adorned the empire bodice, sleeves and the front box pleat of the skirt, and formed a wide band at the hem of the detachable train. A floral headpiece of Alencon lace and seed pearls held her waterfall veil of silk illusion. She carried a cascade bouquet of white daisy pompons and ivy.

Miss Jane Cashman, sister of the bride, wore a long gown of yellow shantung, and yellow veil with daisies. She carried a daisy centered bouquet of white and yellow pompons.

Best man was Peter Lanman and ushers were Michael Cashman, brother of the bride, and Maurice Cashman, cousin of the bride.

The mother of the bride wore a raw silk ensemble of yellow and green with yellow hat and green cymidium corsage. The mother of the groom chose a beige and white ensemble with a beige cymidium orchid corsage. Mrs. John Begeny, grandmother of the groom, was remembered with a white pom-pom daisy corsage.

The wedding reception was held in the home of the bride's parents with one hundred attending. Decorations included arrangements of white chrysanthemums, pom-pom daisies, eucalyptus, and tapers in silver candelabra. Aides were Gerry Lanman, Molly Rosenquist, Kathy McNamara, with Judy Dahl, sister of the groom, and Beth Gay, cousin of the bride, managing the guest book.

The bride is a graduate of Warren Area High School and of Penn Hall Junior College in Chambersburg, Penna. The groom, also a graduate of Warren Area High School, is studying at Temple University, Philadelphia, Penna.

Pre-nuptial affairs were given by the secretaries of the Surgical Department at Jefferson Medical College in Philadelphia. Mrs. Paul Harrington, a shower luncheon at 210 Pine, Jamestown, N.Y., and Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Dahl at their home. Guests from out of town included the brother of the bride, Dr. John Cashman and Mrs. Cashman of Cincinnati, Ohio; other guests came from Buffalo, N.Y.; Madison, Wisc.; Athens, Ohio; Pittsburgh and St. Marys, Penna.; Also, Fort Wayne, Ind.; Arlington, Va.; Rockville, Md.; and Sharon, Penna.

Philharmonic Makes Debut In Jamestown, N.Y.

The Jamestown Philharmonic Orchestra, under the direction of Miss Harriet Simons, makes its debut this Sunday at 2:30 p.m. in the Southwestern High School auditorium.

Miss Judith Ross, a harpist and instructor of music at the State University College at Fredonia, will appear with the orchestra, performing one movement of the Dittersdorf Harp Concerto.

Admission to the concert will be $1.00 for adults and 50 cents for children. Students and faculty at Jamestown Community College will be admitted free of charge upon presentation of current Faculty - Student Association cards.

Members of the 50-piece orchestra have been rehearsing weekly at Jamestown Community College since January when Miss Simons was named conductor of the orchestra.

Miss Simons, an assistant professor of music at the State University College at Fredonia, last appeared in Jamestown on November 19, 1967, when the Fredonia Festival Chorus and Orchestra performed Mendelssohn's "Elijah."

A graduate of Drake University, Miss Simons obtained a master's degree in conducting from Indiana University in 1961.

The Jamestown Philharmonic Orchestra will perform in its inaugural program "Sonata da Chiesa" by Corelli; "Water Music Suite" by Handel; "Concerto in A for Harp and Orchestra" by Judith Ross, soloist; "Hymn and Fuguing Tune No. 3" by Cowell; one movement from the "Symphony in C" by Bizet; and the Dvorak "Slavonic Dances No. 8."

Summer Bride-Elect

The engagement and forthcoming marriage of Miss Kathryn L. Rhodes to Sergeant Jackson H. Parsons Jr. has been announced. He is the son of the Rev. and Mrs. Jackson Parsons of New Castle. The Rev. Parsons will be remembered as the former minister of the Barnes and Sheffield Methodist Churches.

A Sheffield High School graduate, class of 1964, Sgt. Parsons attended The Pennsylvania State University and has recently returned from an 18-month tour of duty with the U.S. Air Force in Turkey.

His fiancée is a graduate of McDonnell High School, class of 1964, and will be graduated this month from Edinboro State College, with a Bachelors degree. Miss Rhodes is a member of Sigma Sigma Sigma, national sorority, and is a teacher in Harbor Creek School.

Sgt. Parsons will be serving as an Electronics Instructor at Lackland AFB, San Antonio, Texas.

A summer wedding is being planned.

SOUP SHORTS

A tablespoon of diced apple is ever so good spooned over chicken rice soup, split pea with ham soup, or beef broth.

Add several tablespoons of sour cream to such party-starter soups as black bean, cream of mushroom, or green pea soup.

Add 1 cup fish or clams, drained, to 1 can condensed potato soup and 1 soup can milk; heat. Four minute chowder!

To dress-up mixed vegetables, open a can of cream of celery soup, add about 1/4 cup milk and pour over 4 servings of vegetables. One of the oldest and still most popular casserole tricks is to use 1 can condensed cream of mushroom soup in place of seasoned sauce in a meat, fish, or poultry casserole.

COMMITTEE PLANS FOR SUMMER FESTIVAL

Men of St. Joseph Parish pictured above are members of the large committee now in the midst of planning the annual three-day parish bazaar for the public, The Summer Festival. Dates are set for Friday, Saturday and Sunday, May 31, June 1 and June 2. In the above picture are from left to right: the Rev. Norman Smith and Messrs. John Hartman, Jack Clark, Joseph Tutmaher, Richard Curren, George O'Dea and Richard Sharp. The meeting took place in the Boy Scout room at St. Joseph School on Tuesday evening. Among the many booths the festival will feature are two of particular appeal - A White Elephant booth, and a Parcel Post booth. For the White Elephant booth, donations are wanted of all kinds of knick knacks, bric-a-brac, dishes, china, small household appliances, jewelry, toys, games, books and unwanted antiques; and for the Parcel Post booth, parishioners are being asked to have out of town relatives and friends (as well as themselves right here in town) send gifts of no more cost than 50 cents, through the mail, addressed to Summer Festival, c/o St. Benedict's Convent, Beech street, Warren, Penna. 16365 (those in town can take their wrapped Parcel Post packages personally to the convent). The packages will remain wrapped and be sold as surprise packages at the booth. The three days will also offer delicious food, and many other varieties of booths and entertainment for the whole family.

May Day Breakfast Huge Success

It is estimated that two hundred guests attended the recent annual May Day breakfast held at the Woman's Club of Warren, and sponsored by the Entertainment Department of the club. Co-chairmen were Mrs. Robert Probst and Mrs. Winston Teague. Ticket chairman was Mrs. Lloyd Cleveland. Tables were brightly decorated with red and pink geraniums in gayly colored flower carts. From 9 a.m. until 1 p.m., the members of the Woman's Club assisted the kitchen staff in serving those who came to enjoy a menu which included a choice of juice, scrambled eggs, ham, toast, sweet rolls, doughnuts, coffee and milk.

The May basket placed by the front entrance to the Woman's Club added to the festive spring decorations.

Mrs. Probst and Mrs. Teague expressed thanks to all the members who helped the club staff, not only on the day of the breakfast, when they waited on table and served on the clean-up detail, but helped in the day-before preparations.

Grange News

This Saturday Pomona Grange No. 10 will be hosted by New London Grange. Opening at 10 a. m. with Earl Roberts, master, presiding, the regular order of business and the judging of dresses from all subordinate granges will take place. The one selected as first prize winner goes on to the State Grange competition level. This is a part of the Women's Activities Program.

There will be a tureen dinner at noon and the host Grangers will serve the evening meal at 5 p. m.

Following golf, dinner was served in the Club and an evening of Bridge was enjoyed.

Couple Exchange Vows In Tidioute Methodist Church

Announcement is made of the marriage of Carol Westfall of R.D. 1, Tidioute to John Henry Hollabaugh, also of R.D. 1, Tidioute. The wedding was performed recently in the Tidioute Methodist Church. The Rev. George W. Campbell officiated.

Attending the couple were Mr. and Mrs. M. Kirk Beck of Wildwood Resort.

The children of the couple and Mr. and Mrs. Beck honored them with a shower held at the Watson Grange Hall. About one hundred were present from Salamanca, Jamestown, Russell, Warren, Irvine, Dempseytown, Corry, Girard, Erie, North East and Tidioute.

Mr. and Mrs. Hollabaugh received many gifts for their new home as well as best wishes from their many relatives and friends.

FISH FILLETS IN CUCUMBER-SHRIMP SAUCE: Cook 1/4 cup chopped cucumber and 2 tablespoons chopped onion in 2 tablespoons butter until just tender. Add 1 can frozen condensed shrimp soup, 1/3 cup milk, and a half tablespoon lemon juice. Heat, stirring until soup is thawed. Pour over 4 or 5 servings of broiled or fried fish fillets.

Lander PTG Regular Meeting

The Parent-Teachers Club of the Lander Elementary school held their regular meeting in the school cafeteria with Mrs. Carl Hepler presiding.

The meeting opened with singing America the Beautiful with Mrs. David Marsh at the piano, followed by the salute to the flag.

Special music was provided by the junior choir of the Lander Methodist church. It was voted to sponsor two Girl Scout campers.

For entertainment, Mrs. Charles Gray of Russell showed beautiful and interesting slides of her trip to Europe last year. Refreshments were served by first grade mothers.

THE HAPPENINGS

'The Happenings' Play At Warren High Friday

As a service project, the Student Council of Warren Area High School will present a concert featuring The Happenings this Friday. No tickets will be sold at the door, but are available from Mrs. Helene McClure at Room 121 at the high school. The charge is $3.
The Happenings are four individuals who merged into a successful recording and stage career in the spring of 1966. Their first big record was "See You In September," which sold a million records and earned them a Gold Record. With this success, they were invited to sing "Quando Vedro" at the San Remo Song Festival in Italy and were requested to do their hit "See You In September" in Italian.
Success has not spoiled The Happenings. The boys are serious musicians and dedicated to their careers. Although all of them play musical instruments, they do not accompany themselves when they perform with the exception of Dave who plays the organ. Since they move around a lot on stage and do impersonations and comedy, they have found that playing instruments is too confining. Consequently, they have hired a drummer and a guitarist to travel with them.
The story of their success can be summed up on one word—dedication. Tom Gulliano, who studied hairdressing, is interested in antiques. Bob Miranda is interested in art and divides his time between composing and painting. Dave Tubert is a writer and has many of his songs published by Bright Tunes. Dave and Bob have set up their own production company which they call Mira-Lee Productions. Dave has studied musical theory and harmony along with the piano and organ. Ralph DeVito is interested in photography and the theater; he has tremendous talent for comedy and is hopeful of becoming a dramatic actor.
The Happenings were all born in Paterson, New Jersey, with the exception of Dave. They all still live there. Dave has taken a bachelor apartment for himself in New York City and has bought himself a Honda. The others have invested in more conventional transportation—cars.
Admission to the concert is by ticket only.

Moose to Sponsor Circus In Warren on June 3rd

The Sells & Gray 3-ring circus is coming to Warren, Monday, June 3rd, under the sponsorship of the Moose. One of the major features of the Sells & Gray Circus is its famous enlarged menagerie.

There will be a herd of performing elephants, camels, lions, and indeed, a vast assortment of wild animals from the forest and jungles. Tom-Tom, one of the largest elephants in the world, and believed to be nearly 100 years old will occupy a place in the circus. There will be horse riding acts with pretty girls; jugglers, The Hills Family with its trained dogs from Germany; acrobats and the thrilling high wire aerialists.

Always there is the Congress of Clowns, headed by Fred Marc and Herb Asai, who promise to make much fun for youngsters and oldsters.

Gordon McDonald, governor of Moose Lodge 109 and chairman of the circus project, announces that the advanced sale of the children's tickets is now being conducted. Area business and professional men contacted

May 7 letter from Mrs. Besie Filegar stated that she was feeling much better and she wanted her friends to know how much she appreciated the "Sunshine box" the Reynolds' had brought to her.

Mrs. Lena Paden who is recuperating from her stay in the hospital came Friday to spend sometime with her daughter Mrs. Lena Reynolds and family, and is improving very satisfactorily. Sunday she received a very pretty "Sunshine Basket" from her friends, which she was very happy to receive.

These beautiful but frosty mornings "25 degrees" leaves fear for the fruit in this area. This writer's pear tree that was so full of lovely white blossoms turned dark and is all falling off.

Marion Boughtling of Warren, Ohio called on his sister Mrs. Carl Garber on Sunday and together they called on Seymour and Robert Upton and families and a sister-in-law Mrs. Thelma Long.

Mr. and Mrs. David Morelli and children of Warren, R.D. were Sunday callers of Mr. and Mrs. Sonnie Garber.

The meetings at the United Methodist Church closed Sunday night with very good attendance each night and many making decisions for the Christian Life.

Rev. Beril Peterson was the speaker each night. On Sunday,

Mrs. Peterson and son came for the meetings. Saturday night the Pittsfield young people choir came and rendered many selections. Miss Nancy Clark was in charge of the choir; Miss Debbie Chapel was the pianist; Jim Clark was in charge of the Young People. Robin Sheerer won the Living New Testament for having the most invited guests. In attendance and Robert Graham won the picture for having the largest percentage of the Sunday School class present.

Mr. and Mrs. Friend Sheerer of Findley Lake Camp attended Saturday night. Mr. and Mrs. Monty Davis of New Brighton spent the weekend with Mrs. Hiram Gordon and Sunday Mr. and Mrs. George "Butch" Gordon and three children of Warren, Ohio called on his mother.

Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Danielson were Mr. and Mrs. Howard Ristau and daughter Molly and Mrs. Helen Danielson all of Warren. Also Henry Swanson of Jamestown, N.Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Garber called on Elmer Vanguider Sunday. Elmer has had blood poisoning in his leg but it was much improved. Mr. and Mrs. Jake Brothers are spending some time with Mr. Vanguider. They also called on Mrs. Lena Paden and Mr. and Mrs. Sonnie Garber. Mr. Garber had a bad cut on his thumb and had to have help with the chores.

Mrs. John Wittig who is a patient in the Titusville hospital is improving satisfactorily.

Candidates and Pollers

WASHINGTON — It is about time to face a rather novel, slightly distasteful fact of American political life. With each successive national election, the polls and pollers are assuming more and more importance. Richard Scammon, of the Elections Research Center, has recently remarked:

"This could well be remembered as the Harris-Gallup year."

Neither newspapermen nor politicians as much like this intrusion into their antique preserves as Scammon, perhaps the ablest of all the professional political analysts, is quite obviously right. To begin with, Gov. Nelson Rockefeller's entire electoral strategy depends directly with the pollers.

The New York governor's one hope of overtaking former Vice President Richard Nixon rests on the fact that the Republicans passionately banker for a winner this year. And Louis Harris and Dr. George Gallup are, in fact, the men the governor is relying on to warn the Nixon-leaving delegates that they must choose between "Loser Nixon" and "Winner Rockefeller."

Rockefeller is the first major candidate in American political history to give the pollers this key role. Its importance in his eyes is illustrated by the real reason for his renunciation of candidacy, after Sen. Robert Kennedy's announcement, which he had not expected, and prior to President Johnson's withdrawal, which he had not expected, either.

When it appeared that the Democratic Party would be literally torn to pieces by a Johnson-Kennedy contest, the New York governor figured that it would therefore be "Winner Rockefeller" against "Winner Nixon." If that was going to be the choice, moreover, he sensibly foresaw that the Republicans would certainly prefer "Winner Nixon." Then Mr. Johnson's withdrawal made those calculations obsolete, and Rockefeller became a candidate after all.

The thing does not end there, either. As these words are written, the voters are only just getting ready to cast their ballots in Indiana. But even if Sen. Kennedy wins comfortably in the Indiana primary, it can too easily turn out that the already-published Louis Harris Survey will affect his fortunes even more than the outcome of the primary he has fought so hard to win.

The new Harris Survey, for those who may have missed it, all too dramatically pointed out Kennedy's trouble with the middling group of voters, which has so obviously begun to worry him and his strategists. It showed both Vice President Hubert Humphrey and Sen. Eugene McCarthy beating Nixon by narrow but perceptible margins, while it showed Kennedy losing to Nixon by 38 per cent to 40 per cent.

This was with George Wallace in the race, and with an importantly lower number of "not sure's" than in the tests for McCarthy and Humphrey. With Wallace once again in the race, Harris further found that both Humphrey and McCarthy would give Gov. Rockefeller a hard run for his money, being only 2 points behind him, while Kennedy trailed Rockefeller by no less than 8 points.

This was an important and dramatic change since Harris' March poll, which showed Kennedy comfortably ahead of Nixon. To be sure, a single poll like this is not going to have much impact.

Harris will have to go on finding the same problem for Kennedy, and the inquiring of Dr. Gallup will have to begin finding the same thing that Harris has just found, before the effect on Kennedy's fortunes begins to be really painful. And there are all sorts of things, including the Indiana results, that may influence the trend of future polls.

Nonetheless, the warning signal sounded by this Harris Survey is very loud and clear. The difference between Harris' March results and May results means, quite simply, that Kennedy's emotion-charged and extreme speeches prior to the President's withdrawal both alarmed and repelled great numbers of those middling voters whom he has belatedly begun to court.

The trouble is that once this kind of self-damage has been done, it is exceedingly hard to undo. Hence, the biggest question for Robert Kennedy may well prove to be not whether he can win all the primaries he is scheduled to enter, but whether the polls that have begun to turn against him will come around again in the end.

The fact of the matter is that even the most impressive string of primary victories may not be enough to put Kennedy over the top, if the polls are meanwhile saying that the senator undoubtedly evokes passionate enthusiasm among certain groups of Democratic voters, but that he is nonetheless incapable of commanding a national majority.

SCIENCE SKETCH

BETTER trash-collection breeds more trash, according to Northwestern University. Twice-weekly service gets a greater trash harvest than once-a-week collection. The survey says that increased service encourages more trips to the garbage can with trash instead of burning it, dumping it or simply leaving it around the house.

OTHERS SAY . . .

On Civil Disobedience

When riots occur and there is a breakdown of law and order, emotions and prejudices often overwhelm judgment and sound reasoning. We have seen this occur in the recent past in many of our major cities. In such instances, most people agree the restoration of law and order is, and should be, the paramount issue. Disagreement sometimes arises over how this can best be achieved and by whom.

In any circumstance where passions are aroused and prompt decisions are necessary, it helps materially if the lines of responsibility are clearly drawn and understood. This is particularly true in riots, racial turmoil, and disturbances where arson, murder, looting, and wanton destruction occur.

Apparently, the role of the FBI in civil disorders is not fully known to all citizens, and therefore it is frequently misunderstood. Some highly vocal groups insist that the FBI is obligated to step in and usurp the power of local law enforcement and "police" the areas where, in their opinion, a breakdown of law and order has occurred. The FBI has no lawful authority or jurisdiction to take this action and certainly does not seek such national police power. In those instances when we refuse to exceed our authority, some extremists in these groups have accused the FBI of racism. Many times it is determined that these bigots are the same agitators and exploiters who provoked the disorder in the first place. On the other hand, some individuals insist that the FBI in performing its duties exceeds its authority and encroaches on the authority belonging to state and local enforcement agencies. In both instances, emotions and expediency override rationality.

The FBI's responsibilities are clearly defined and limited by federal statutes and presidential directives. This bureau has no jurisdiction to protect persons or property or to police and control riotous conditions. These are obligations of local and state police agencies. Basically, the FBI's role in civil disorders is the development and dissemination of intelligence information, at the same time being alert to any specific violations of federal laws over which it has investigative jurisdiction. In the field of civil rights, this Bureau functions solely as a fact-gathering and fact-reporting agency. The information and evidence gathered are furnished to the attorney general for prosecutive consideration. For years the FBI has offered to local law enforcement agencies every possible cooperative service in the fields of civil disorders and civil rights. During the 1950's, for example, the FBI conducted almost 600 civil rights police schools, and since the early 1960's, this bureau has instructed almost 80,000 law enforcement officers in the various functional aspects of mob and riot control.

If the FBI has been consistent in any one commitment over the years, it is in its awareness of the exacting limitations within which it must operate. We have meticulously avoided infringement on responsibilities belonging to local and state authorities. By the same token, we have always met our obligations regardless of criticisms and attacks from special interest groups, whoever they are.

Diversionary tactics by law-breakers are as old as crime itself. Those bent on civil disobedience, riotous rebellion, and racial strife make good use of the technique. Time after time, with wild, unfounded charges, they have, in the minds of some people, successfully made law enforcement and established authority the scapegoats while diverting the critical public eye from their unlawful conduct. We can expect these groups and individuals to continue these disruptive practices. During the coming months, if riots occur, unwarranted criticisms will again be directed against the FBI and other enforcement agencies by those who are eager to mislead the public and to negate effective police cooperation by misrepresenting the facts. The public should remember that persons who defy the law frequently find it expedient to disparage agencies charged with enforcing it. — John Edgar Hoover, FBI Director.
